Polo Grounds, New York, Oct. 6.—(By the A. P.)—The New York Giants took the third game of the series with Washington today, 6 to 4, and jumped into the lead in the series, two games to one. The game was replete with fielding and hitting features, Frisch, Rice and Young producing an abundance of fielding stunts which sparked with brilliancy.

New York had McQuillan, Ryan, Jonnard and Watson as pitchers while Washington used Marberry, Martina, Russell and Speece.

Forty thousand or more spectators swarmed into the historic ball yard this afternoon to cheer the Senators and Giants. A few stood around the bleacher gates all night but it was not necessary for there was room in the unreserved section at noon. They did not fill until game time.

Another warm day was furnished for the sport and ground keepers had the inner and outer fields in fine condition.

"That right field stand is just my dish," said Goose Goslin, clean-up hitter of the Senators, commenting on the short right field. "They must have built it for me."

"I put a few in there myself," said Joe Judge, who has played many games here with the Senators before the Yankees moved over to their own grounds across the river.

Game In Detail

First Inning
Senators—Liebold went out Frisch to Terry. Harris sent a long fly to Young. Rice was given a base on balls. Goslin was thrown out at first by Frisch. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Giants—Lindstrom struck out, taking a third called strike. Goslin took Frisch's lofty fly. Young got a line single into left field. Kelly was out at first, Harris to Judge. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Second Inning
Senators—Judge singled sharply over the middle bag. Bluege hit in to a double play, McQuillan to Frisch to Terry. Lindstrom took Peck's grounder and threw him out. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Giants—Terry cracked a single into right. Wilson fanned. Bluege took Jackson's grounder and threw to Harris, who dropped the ball. Terry scored on Gowdy's single to left. Jackson going to third. Gowdy was out, stretching his hit. Bluege to Harris. Jackson scored on a wild pitch by Marberry. McQuillan walked. Lindstrom also walked. Frisch was hit by a pitched ball and the bags were loaded. Young fanned. Two runs, two hits, one error.

Third Inning
Senators—Ruel was given a ticket to first. Marberry forced Ruel. McQuillan to Frisch. Liebold flied out to Wilson. Terry made a nice running catch of Harris' foul. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Giants—Miller went to third for Washington and Bluege went to short. Peck's leg was injured. Kelly got a Texas leaguer to center. Terry singled into right. Kelly going to third. Kelly scored when Wilson hit into a double play, Marberry to Bluege to Harris to Judge. Jackson was a victim on strikes. Two hits, one run, no errors.

Fourth Inning
Senators—Rice walked. Frisch made a wonderful catch of Goslin's high fly, kicking back to center field to take the ball. Judge slashed a hit into left for two bases. Rice going to third. Bluege got a base on balls filling the bases. Rice scored on Miller's sacrifice fly to Wilson. Judge holding second. Ruel got a base on balls. The bases were filled. Tate batted for Marberry. Ryan went into the box in place of McQuillan. Judge scored when Tate was given a base on balls. The bases were still filled. Wilson took Liebold's foul. Two runs, one hit, no errors.

Giants—Liebold gathered in Gowdy's long drive. Ryan got a home run into the upper right field stands. Rice made a wonderful one-handed catch of Lindstrom's drive, crashing into the concrete stand. Frisch singled over second. Gosling took Young's drive. One run, two hits, no errors.

Fifth Inning

THREE KILLED
IN AUTO CRASH

Drive Automobile Into Freight Train in Minnesota

Bloomington, Minn., Oct. 6.—Three young men were killed early Sunday when they drove their automobile into a freight train south of here.

Members of the freight train crew were unaware of the accident which was discovered by a motorist who found two men dead and a third who died before medical aid could be summoned.

Those killed were Christian Rask and Arnold Benson of Westfield township, Lodge county, and Joseph Lyne of near Bixby. All were engaged in farming and were about 25 years old.

The accident occurred where the Red Ball road, south of here crossed the track of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad. The train passed that crossing a few minutes after midnight this morning.

No Money to Buy New Planes,
Air Service Had to Use
Old, Says Martin

WARNING WAS GIVEN

Capt. Skeel, Killed in Pulitzer
Race, Had Premonition
of Disaster

Cleveland, O., Oct. 6.—Capt. Burt E. Skeel, killed during the Pulitzer speed classic at Dayton, Saturday, plunged to his death in a plane that was worn out two years ago, Glenn L. Martin, local aircraft manufacturer and manager of the board of managers of the National Aeronautic Association, said last night on his return from Dayton.

The Air Service had no money to buy new planes for the race and had to use old ones, Mr. Martin quoted, Brigadier-General Mitchell, assistant chief of the Army air service as saying in Dayton after the accident.

Capt. Skeel was flying one of the three Curtiss army racers bought by the government for the Pulitzer races in 1922. One of the planes collapsed in the air at McCook field, Dayton, about six weeks ago, resulting in the death of Lieut. Alexander Pearson. The third was used by Lieut. L. H. Brookley in Saturday's race.

"The vice-president of the Curtiss company told me the planes were not built to be flown longer than three months," Mr. Martin said. "At the end of that time they should have been replaced if used for racing."

"The Air Service could not buy any new planes for the races this year because Congress failed to appropriate enough money."

Capt. Skeel had a premonition that he might "go west" on his attempt to win the Pulitzer trophy, Mr. Martin continued. Before the flight he refused to let his friends arrange a dinner party.

Subscribed Today

Bismarck's Red Cross Roll Call, which will take place October 16, 17 and 18 was given an excellent start today by 100 percent co-operation of the Kiwanis club. R. H. Tracy who heads the Bismarck drive was chairman of the day and through the various speakers the work of the Burleigh County Red Cross Chapter was thoroughly explained.

Guests of honor were members of the executive board of the local chapter and those who will help Mr. Tracy with his organization plans. Chapter executive board members present were J. L. Bell, Dr. F. R. Smyth, Dr. L. A. Schipper, Col. Russ and G. D. Mann. Others connected with the drive who were guests are: Miss Mary Cachel, welfare worker of the chapter, Miss Sarah Sand, Mrs. H. A. Brandes and Jefferson Steiner.

Dr. Schipper explained the general aspects of the Red Cross work indicating with what efficiency the practical side of the chapter work had been taken care of by Miss Cachel.

Miss Cachel spoke upon the three fold nature of the Red Cross work as it touches upon the work with service men, poor relief for city and county. Under her regime the poor relief expenditures have been cut 40% and a saving in the county for mothers' pensions of $8,000 has been made. Soldier welfare work for eight counties is cared for at the Bismarck chapter. Ninety-eight cases have been disposed of. Pension and bonus matters are being cared for daily and through the chapter social registration bureau is being conducted which eliminates duplication of time, money and effort.

Explains Finances
J. L. Bell, treasurer of the local chapter, explained how the money is disbursed through the various activities and he pointed to the small overhead cost of administering the funds. The National Red Cross society during its last fiscal year distributed some $16,310,000 with only a cost of $369,000 or approximately 2 1/2 percent.

Miss Sarah Sand, who served eighteen months overseas as a nurse, told of the work of the Red Cross during the war. She urged the most hearty support of Bismarck to all Red Cross activities. Her address in a most interesting manner illustrated how the Red Cross functions abroad in case of war and disaster.

Jefferson Steiner has been selected by Mr. Tracy as his assistant in what promises to be a most successful drive for funds. Memberships of a dollar are to be asked and "Sign Up For The Whole Family" is to be the slogan. Mr. Tracy is busy getting an active committee together.

Make Contribution
The Kiwanis Club was the first to "kick" in to the drive largely because of a hopeless deadlock in the selecting of the winner of the attendance prize put up by Mr. Tracy. It was the price of two tons of coal. L. C. Sorlien of the bachelor's bloc drew the coal and this started such a protest that other drawings were made without success or approval so the deadlock was broken when someone suggested that the check for the coal be turned into the Red Cross funds.

J. D. Stenson, assistant fire marshal, spoke of the great need for observance of fire prevention. He indicated how the fire losses had been cut down but urged even greater vigilance. He specially urged greater need for supervision in the schools to cut down the fire hazard and declared that many schools were veritable fire-traps.

DODGING THE ISSUE AS USUAL

Defense of the three per cent gratuity paid T. R. Atkinson upon $265,000, purchase price of the water plant and tacit agreement to continuing his service as city engineer upon a five per cent basis upon all contracts of $500 or more are offered in a recent article signed: "Bystander." This answer to "Bystander," however, is written from the standpoint of a taxpayer, not from that of an eavesdropper, a non-resident or a mere "Bystander."

Fundamentally the trouble now is that our city budgets are being dictated in too great a degree by tax-eaters and bystanders. Those who have the temerity to criticize city finances or who seek simply to inform their readers on how the money is being spent and who gets it are abused, vilified and bombastically classed as seekers after revenge. How melodramatic! But none of this bombast reduces said taxes.

In his article "Bystander" discusses not taxes or their possible reduction but raises as a counter issue a former accountant of the Bismarck Water Supply company and the general manager and editor of The Tribune. Through no stretch of imagination can these persons be considered the issues involved in the matter of tax reduction in the city of Bismarck how deeply their actions or their ideas enrage "Bystander." Neither is it an issue affecting immediate tax reduction in Bismarck that T. R. Atkinson by his valuation of the Bismarck Water Supply plant saved the taxpayers of this city $200,000.

All of the Bystanders allegations whether they be true or false is so much water that has gone under the bridge and are merely reiterated now to obscure the real issue before the citizens of Bismarck: IMMEDIATE TAX REDUCTION. This issue has been dodged by the city commission, but the issue is one which the taxpayers and people generally of this city can hardly afford to ignore. That many of them are keenly alive to the situation is manifest by the vehemency of "Bystander," the anonymous apologist of those responsible for the present tax load.

Not a figure put forth by The Tribune in its analysis of city finances has been challenged by the "Bystander."

With even an elementary conception of business economy, "Bystander" should know that a great saving would be effected if the city engineer were placed upon a salary basis as is done in practically every city in North Dakota. It should be apparent to this transient "Bystander," (resident or non-resident who knows?) if the offices of city engineer, street commissioner and superintendent of water works were combined and the five per cent engineering commission eliminated, that a saving in excess of $10,000 a year could easily be made. This might work a hardship upon the beneficiaries under the present extravagant system and cut down the quota of "Bystanders," but it would be sweet music to the ears of the taxpayers.

It is common knowledge also to the people of Bismarck that in the last ten years, T. R. Atkinson has drawn from the city treasury approximately $100,000 for engineering services, not to mention what has poured into his pockets from state and county sources over the same period. Add to this rather imposing sum for a city of some 7,000 or 8,000 souls, the extra expense the city has been caused by his costly blunders and the grand total of this city's share alone paid Atkinson would reach the imposing figure of some $125,000—and THE END IS NOT YET.

Granting that T. R. Atkinson saved the taxpayers of Bismarck $200,000 in the purchase of the old plant, is he not cutting down the saving at a most rapid pace in three and five per cent slices? It begins to look to an ordinary dub of a taxpayer that the saving was made for T. R. and not for him. Mr. Bystander may be interested in this kind of a bounty, but the taxpayers in the words of Kipling must continue to: "Pay, Pay, Pay."

It might be enlightening for the taxpayers of Bismarck if "Bystander" would work out how long at three, and five per cent commissions it will take T. R. Atkinson to absorb completely this so-called $200,000 saving. A nice but easy problem for "Bystander's" next effort.

While the city commission refuses absolutely to retrench in the matter of city finances, it might be a fertile field for the city and county officials to tackle the matter of tax delinquency in Bismarck.

A large percentage of taxes assessed against vacant lots cannot be paid because the special assessments under the Atkinson plan has virtually confiscated them, but how many fail to pay their taxes who can and by such delinquency place a heavier burden upon those who do pay?

What are the city and county officials doing to collect from those who don't pay?

To what extent is the mouthpiece used by "Bystander" delinquent in taxes? Has it ever paid a cent of taxes in Bismarck? "Bystander" can spend a profitable hour at the county auditor's office in answer to this question.

Of course then in such an event such mere trifles as taxes and tax reduction cannot interest a "Bystander."

The Tribune will continue to discuss city expenditures not from the base interest of a "Bystander," a tax delinquent, a non-resident or an eavesdropper, but from the very vital standpoint of a taxpayer.

Lets meet the tax issue squarely in Bismarck to the desired end of a bigger and a better Bismarck so that in all tax reductions effected thereby, all may share and share alike in the benefits; for surely government is instituted for the benefit of all the people and not for the benefit of any clique whose fingers may happen to be near the public purse strings.

Rush of Buying Orders Carries Both Wheat and Rye To Highest Price

WEATHER IS THE CAUSE

Too Much Moisture in Canada and Too Little in Argentine Affects Market

Chicago, Oct. 6.—(By the A. P.)—In a rush of buying all deliveries of wheat and rye soared today to the highest price yet this season. Unfavorable weather in Canada and Argentina was the principal immediate motive for purchasing in Canada, too much moisture was reported, and in Argentina, too little.

Wheat opening prices, which varied from 1.58 to 4.18 cents higher, with December $1.50 to $1.51 1/2 and May $1.55 to $1.57 were followed by rapid fluctuations covering a range of about three cents and averaging about two cents over Saturday's close.

NEW HIGH MARK

Minneapolis, Oct. 6.—Wheat prices soared to new high levels today, smashing all records since 1921. May wheat sold at $1.55, two and a half cents over the previous 1924 high mark. Prices of rye also mounted to new peak figures, while oats and corn shared the strength of other grains. Cash wheat mounted to $1.67 1/2 for choice consignments an increase of 1 1/2 cents over the previous peak. Today's new record for rye included sales of December in Minneapolis at $1.29 1/8 as compared with a previous high mark of $1.26.

Polo Grounds, New York, Oct. 6.—(By the A. P.)—The New York Giants took the third game of the series with Washington today, 6 to 4, and jumped into the lead in the series, two games to one. The game was replete with fielding and hitting features, Frisch, Rice and Young producing an abundance of fielding stunts which sparked with brilliancy.

New York had McQuillan, Ryan, Jonnard and Watson as pitchers while Washington used Marberry, Martina, Russell and Speece.

Polo Grounds, New York, Oct. 6.—(By the A. P.)—The Washington Senators invaded the stronghold of the New York Giants this afternoon intent on fighting the proud champions of the National League, hip and thigh, and making them like it. The brilliant victory of the American Leaguers yesterday at the National Capital has made them a host of friends in the alien Polo Grounds and today, though each club has captured a game in the world series struggle, New Yorkers have made the Washington club a favorite in the series.

Forty thousand or more spectators swarmed into the historic ball yard this afternoon to cheer the Senators and Giants. A few stood around the bleacher gates all night but it was not necessary for there was room in the unreserved section at noon. They did not fill until game time.

Another warm day was furnished for the sport and ground keepers had the inner and outer fields in fine condition.

"That right field stand is just my dish," said Goose Goslin, clean-up hitter of the Senators, commenting on the short right field. "They must have built it for me."

"I put a few in there myself," said Joe Judge, who has played many games here with the Senators before the Yankees moved over to their own grounds across the river.

Game in Detail

First Inning
Senators—Liebold went out Frisch to Terry. Harris sent a long fly to Young. Rice was given a base on balls. Goslin was thrown out at first by Frisch. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Giants—Lindstrom struck out, taking a third called strike. Goslin took Frisch's lofty fly. Young got a line single into left field. Kelly was out at first, Harris to Judge. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Second Inning
Senators—Judge singled sharply over the middle bag. Bluege hit into a double play, McQuillan to Frisch to Terry. Lindstrom took Peck's grounder and threw him out. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Giants—Terry cracked a single into right. Wilson fanned. Bluege took Jackson's grounder and threw to Harris, who dropped the ball. Terry scored on Gowdy's single to left, Jackson going to third. Gowdy was out, stretching his hit, Goslin to Harris. Jackson scored on a wild pitch by Marberry. McQuillan walked. Lindstrom also walked. Frisch was hit by a pitched ball and the bags were loaded. Young fanned. Two runs, two hits, one error.

Third Inning
Senators—Ruel was given a ticket to first. Marberry forced Ruel. McQuillan to Frisch. Liebold flied out to Wilson. Terry made a nice running catch of Harris' foul. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Giants—Miller went to third for Washington and Bluege went to short. Peck's leg was injured. Kelly got a Texas leaguer to center. Terry singled into right. Kelly going to third. Kelly scored when Wilson hit into a double play, Marberry to Bluege to Harris to Judge. Jackson was a victim on strikes. Two hits, one run, no errors.

Fourth Inning
Senators—Rice walked. Frisch made a wonderful catch of Goslin's high fly, racing back to center field to take the ball. Judge slashed a hit into left for two bases. Rice going to third. Bluege got a base on balls filling the bases. Rice scored on Miller's sacrifice fly to Wilson. Judge holding second. Ruel got a base on balls. The bases were filled. Tate batted for Marberry. Ryan went into the box in place of McQuillan. Judge scored when Tate was given a base on balls. The bases were still filled. Wilson took Liebold's foul. Two runs, one hit, no errors.

Giants—Liebold gathered in Gowdy's long drive. Ryan got a home run into the upper right field stands. Rice made a wonderful one-handed catch of Lindstrom's drive, crashing into the concrete stand. Frisch singled over second. Gosling took Young's drive. One run, two hits, no errors.

Fifth Inning
Senators—Harris flied out to Kelly. Frisch threw out Rice. Frisch robbed Goslin of a hit for the second time, going out to right field to take the Gosse's Texas leaguer. No runs, no hits, no errors.

THREE KILLED IN AUTO CRASH

Drive Automobile Into Freight Train in Minnesota

Bloomington, Minn., Oct. 6.—Three young men were killed early Sunday when they drove their automobile into a freight train south of here.

Members of the freight train crew were unaware of the accident which was discovered by a motorist who found two men dead and a third who died before medical aid could be summoned.

Those killed were Christian Rask and Arnold Benson of Westfield township, Lodge county, and Joseph Lyne of near Bixby. All were engaged in farming and were about 25 years old.

The accident occurred where the Red Ball road, south of here crossed the track of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad. The train passed that crossing a few minutes after midnight this morning.

OMAHA YARDS BADLY BURNED

Second Million Dollar Fire Occurs There

Omaha, Oct. 6.—The second million dollar fire at the Union Stock yards at South Omaha within a period of two years, destroyed four buildings, threatened two others, and caused the entire fire fighting forces of Omaha and South Omaha to put forth their best efforts to save other plants of the stock yards Sunday.

The cause of the fire, which started in the plant's lumber yard, is unknown. Five box cars laden with lumber, on a side track near the yards were scorched, sparks from the original fire quickly engulfing them in the spreading flames. Besides the lumber yard, the box factory, hide factory, Dutch Cleanser plant and several smaller buildings were destroyed.

Company officials at the scene of the conflagration declined an official statement but estimated the loss would approach $1,000,000.

Oldfield Goes 87 Miles an Hour, Arrested

Calexico, Calif., Oct. 6.—Barney Oldfield veteran automobile race driver, was at liberty under $500 bond here today pending arraignment in police court on a charge of driving his coupe while intoxicated. According to police Oldfield was driving 87 miles an hour on the highway between Calexico and El Centro, Saturday night.

Three motorcycles attempted to overtake him but only one was successful.

TWO GRANT COUNTY GIRLS CARRY OFF NATIONAL HONORS FOR STATE

Two little North Dakota girls—Mary Cotner, 12, and Edna Vogel, 13—are back in Grant county today going into national competition at the National Dairy Show at Milwaukee and winning honors for themselves, their community and their state.

The girls tied for third place in the national clean milk demonstration contest, ranked first among the girls teams, Mary Cotner won first and Edna Vogel second individual honors for girls, and Mary placed third in the health contest. Chaperoned by C. H. Wilson, county agent of Grant county, the girls were selected as representatives of the Grant County Holstein Club, and were sent to the show by contributions from the community of Lark and Commercial Clubs of Carson, Elgin and New Leipzig. AVIATOR DIES AS OLD PLANE FAILS TO HOLD

No Money to Buy New Planes, Air Service Had to Use Old, Says Martin

WARNING WAS GIVEN

Capt. Skeel, Killed in Pulitzer Race, Had Premonition of Disaster

Cleveland, O., Oct. 6.—Capt. Burt E. Skeel, killed during the Pulitzer speed classic at Dayton, Saturday, plunged to his death in a plane that was worn out two years ago, Glenn L. Martin, local aircraft manufacturer and manager of the board of managers of the National Aeronautic Association, said last night on his return from Dayton.

The Air Service had no money to buy new planes for the race and had to use old ones, Mr. Martin quoted. Brigadier-General Mitchell, assistant chief of the Army air service as saying in Dayton after the accident.

Capt. Skeel was flying one of the three Curtiss army racers bought by the government for the Pulitzer races in 1922. One of the planes collapsed in the air at McCook field, Dayton, about six weeks ago, resulting in the death of Lieut. Alexander Pearson. The third was used by Lieut. L. H. Brookley in Saturday's race.

"The vice-president of the Curtiss company told me the planes were not built to be flown longer than three months," Mr. Martin said. "At the end of that time they should have been replaced if used for racing. It was generally understood that the Air Service could not buy any new planes for the races this year because Congress failed to appropriate enough money."

Capt. Skeel had a premonition that he might "go west" on his attempt to win the Pulitzer trophy, Mr. Martin continued. Before the flight he refused to let his friends arrange a dinner party.

His body was brought to Cleveland today by military escort. Funeral services will be held here tomorrow.

NEGROES FIGHT, BOTH WOUNDED

One Cut, Other Is Shot in Abdomen, in Quarrel

Fargo, Oct. 6.—Albert Spencer, negro, known to the police as "Lucky Dreams," is in a local hospital with a bullet hole through his abdomen and Charles McAdoo, also a negro, who is declared to have a police record, is in the Cass county jail charged with assault with a deadly weapon, as a result of a row following a "craps" game here Sunday.

McAdoo admits shooting Spencer with a rusty old rifle barrel, which is minus a stock, but he is badly cut about the chin and head and he has filed a counter charge of assault with a dangerous weapon against the wounded man. Spencer is much improved today and is reported to be out of critical danger and will recover.

McAdoo waived examination and was held to the district court under $1,000 bail in default of which he was given into the custody of the sheriff.

COURT TERM TO OPEN TOMORROW

The October term of district court will open here tomorrow, with Judge Jansons presiding. Court cases are on the program for the day.

RED CROSS IS GIVEN AID BY KIWANIS CLUB

Bismarck's Red Cross Roll Call Gets Auspicious Start at Meeting

CONTRIBUTION MADE

First Money For Campaign Fund For Organization Is Subscribed Today

Bismarck's Red Cross Roll Call, which will take place October 16, 17 and 18 was given an excellent start today by 100 percent co-operation of the Kiwanis club. R. H. Tracy who heads the Bismarck drive was chairman of the day and through the various speakers the work of the Burleigh County Red Cross Chapter was thoroughly explained.

Guests of honor were members of the executive board of the local chapter and those who will help Mr. Tracy with his organization plans. Chapter executive board members present were J. L. Bell, Dr. P. R. Smyth, Dr. L. A. Schipper, Col. Russ and G. D. Mann. Others connected with the drive who were guests are: Miss Mary Cachel, welfare worker of the chapter, Miss Sarah Sand, Mrs. H. A. Brandes and Jefferson Steiner. Dr. Steiner explained the general aspects of the Red Cross work indicating with what efficiency the practical side of the chapter work had been taken care of by Miss Cachel.

Miss Cachel spoke upon the three fold nature of the Red Cross work as it touches upon the work with service men, poor relief for city and county. Under her regime the poor relief expenditures have been cut 40% and a saving in the county for mothers' pensions of $8,000 has been made. Soldier welfare work for eight counties is cared for at the Bismarck chapter. Ninety-eight cases have been disposed of. Pension and bonus matters are being cared for daily and through the chapter social registration bureau is being conducted which eliminates application of time, money and effort.

Explains Finances

J. L. Bell, treasurer of the local chapter, explained how the money is disbursed through the various activities and he pointed to the small overhead cost of administering the funds. The National Red Cross society during its last fiscal year distributed some $169,000,000 with only a cost of $369,000 or approximately 2.4 percent.

Miss Sarah Sand, who served eighteen months overseas as a nurse, told of the work of the Red Cross during the war. She urged the most hearty support of Bismarck to all Red Cross activities. Her address, in a most interesting manner, illustrated the Red Cross functions abroad in case of war and disaster.

Jefferson Steiner has been selected by Mr. Tracy as his assistant in what promises to be a most successful drive for funds. Memberships of a dollar are being asked and "Sign Up For The Whole Family" is to be the slogan. Mr. Tracy is busy getting an active committee together.

Make Contribution

The Kiwanis Club was the first to "kick in" to the drive largely because of a hopeless deadlock in the selecting of the winner of the attendance prize put up by Mr. Tracy. It was the price of two tons of coal. L. C. Sorlien of the bachelor's bloc drew the coal and this started such a protest that other drawings were made without success or approval so the deadlock was broken when someone suggested that the check for the coal be turned into the Red Cross funds.

J. D. Stenson, assistant fire-marshall, spoke on the great need for observance of fire prevention. He indicated how the fire losses had been cut down but urged even greater vigilance. He especially urged greater need for supervision in the schools to cut down the fire hazard and declared that many schools were veritable fire-traps.

Dr. N. O. Ramstad presided in the absence of President Birdzell.

MINISTERS TO FIGHT JUDGE

Fargo, N. D., Oct. 6.—An appeal to the voters of the First Judicial district was made public today by the Fargo Ministerial union, the voters of the district being asked to give their support to candidates for the district bench other than Judge A. T. Cole of Fargo, who is a candidate for re-election.

In the appeal, which is in the form of resolutions adopted by the Fargo Ministerial association at a meeting held this week, the record of suspensions of sentences in liquor cases is made the basis on which the voters are asked to withhold support from Judge Cole.

DODGING THE ISSUE AS USUAL

Defense of the three per cent gratuity paid T. R. Atkinson upon $265,000, purchase price of the water plant and tacit agreement to continuing his service as city engineer upon a five per cent basis upon all contracts of $500 or more are offered in a recent article signed: "Bystander." This answer to "Bystander," however, is written from the standpoint of a taxpayer, not from that of an eavesdropper, a non-resident or a mere "Bystander."

Fundamentally the trouble now is that our city budgets are being dictated in too great a degree by tax-eaters and bystanders. Those who have the temerity to criticize city finances or who seek simply to inform their readers on how the money is being spent and who gets it are abused, vilified and bombastically classed as seekers after revenge. How melodramatic! But none of this bombast reduces said taxes.

In his article "Bystander" discusses not taxes or their possible reduction but raises as a counter issue a former accountant of the Bismarck Water Supply company and the general manager and editor of The Tribune. Through no stretch of imagination can these persons be considered the issues involved in the matter of tax reduction in the city of Bismarck how deeply their actions or their ideas enrage "Bystander." Neither is it an issue affecting immediate tax reduction in Bismarck that T. R. Atkinson by his valuation of the Bismarck Water Supply plant saved the taxpayers of this city $200,000.

All of the Bystanders allegations whether they be true or false is so much water that has gone under the bridge and are merely reiterated now to obscure the real issue before the citizens of Bismarck: IMMEDIATE TAX REDUCTION. This issue has been dodged by the city commission, but the issue is one which the taxpayers and people generally of this city can hardly afford to ignore. That many of them are keenly alive to the situation is manifest by the vehemency of "Bystander," the anonymous apologist of those responsible for the present tax load.

Not a figure put forth by The Tribune in its analysis of city finances has been challenged by the "Bystander."

With even an elementary conception of business economy, "Bystander" should know that a great saving would be effected if the city engineer were placed upon a salary basis as is done in practically every city in North Dakota. It should be apparent to this transient "Bystander," (resident or non-resident who knows?) if the offices of city engineer, street commissioner and superintendent of water works were combined and the five per cent engineering commission eliminated, that a saving in excess of $10,000 a year could easily be made. This might work a hardship upon the beneficiaries under the present extravagant system and cut down the quota of "Bystanders," but it would be sweet music to the ears of the taxpayers.

It is common knowledge also to the people of Bismarck that in the last ten years, T. R. Atkinson has drawn from the city treasury approximately $100,000 for engineering services, not to mention what has poured into his pockets from state and county sources over the same period. Add to this rather imposing sum for a city of some 7,000 or 8,000 souls, the extra expense the city has been caused by his costly blunders and the grand total of this city's share alone paid Atkinson would reach the imposing figure of some $125,000.—THE END IS NOT YET.

Granting that T. R. Atkinson saved the taxpayers of Bismarck $200,000 in the purchase of the old plant, is he not cutting down the saving at a most rapid pace in three and five per cent slices? It begins to look to an ordinary dub of a taxpayer that the saving was made for T. R. and not for him. Mr. Bystander may be interested in this kind of a bounty, but the taxpayers in the words of Kipling must continue to: "Pay, Pay, Pay."

It might be enlightening for the taxpayers of Bismarck if "Bystander" would work out how long at three, and five per cent commissions it will take T. R. Atkinson to absorb completely this so-called $200,000 saving. A nice but easy problem for "Bystander's" next effort.

While the city commission refuses absolutely to retrench in the matter of city finances, it might be a fertile field for the city and county officials to tackle the matter of tax delinquency in Bismarck.

A large percentage of taxes assessed against vacant lots cannot be paid because the special assessments under the Atkinson plan has virtually confiscated them, but how many fail to pay their taxes who can and by such delinquency place a heavier burden upon those who do pay?

What are the city and county officials doing to collect from those who don't pay?

To what extent is the mouthpiece used by "Bystander" delinquent in taxes? Has it ever paid a cent of taxes in Bismarck? "Bystander" can spend a profitable hour at the county auditor's office in answer to this question.

Of course then in such an event such mere trifles as taxes and tax reduction cannot interest a "Bystander."

The Tribune will continue to discuss city expenditures not from the base interest of a "Bystander," a tax delinquent, a non-resident or an eavesdropper, but from the very vital standpoint of a taxpayer.

Lets meet the tax issue squarely in Bismarck to the desired end of a bigger and a better Bismarck so that in all tax reductions effected thereby, all may share and share alike in the benefits; for surely government is instituted for the benefit of all the people and not for the benefit of any clique whose fingers may happen to be near the public purse strings.

Heavy Grain Shipments Out Of Van Hook

Van Hook, N. D., Oct. 6.—A veritable deluge of grain has been the experience of the grain elevators at Van Hook the past month and the work is by all means not ended.

The Farmers elevator took in for one day 154 loads of grain, which is a record breaker for this concern, 153 being a close second.

Station Agent L. R. Glanville states that 228 cars of wheat were shipped out from the local station during the month of September, which aggregate about 305,000 bushels. Besides this, Mr. Glanville states, there are about 50,000 bushels in storage at the elevators, and 6 or 8 cars loaded which had not been billed Tuesday Sept. 30.

In addition to the above, nine cars of flax were shipped, aggregating 11,500 bushels. Eight cars of rye making about 10,500 bushels, were also shipped, all this year's crop. Besides these shipments of rye and flax there were in the elevators on Tuesday 5,000 bushels of flax, and about 6,000 bushels of rye.

DAUGHTER OF J. N. ROHERTY DIES AT HOME

Ann Elizabeth, 16-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Roherty, died at their home, 323 First street, at midnight Saturday, after an illness of two weeks from bronchial pneumonia. The little child made a brave fight against the disease. Funeral services will be held at 8:15 Tuesday morning at St. Mary's church, Father Slag officiating.

WHEAT RENEWS UPWARD PRICE JOURNEY TODAY

Rush of Buying Orders Carries Both Wheat and Rye To Highest Price

WEATHER IS THE CAUSE

Too Much Moisture in Canada and Too Little in Argentine Affects Market

Chicago, Oct. 6.—(By the A. P.)—In a rush of buying all deliveries of wheat and rye soared today to the highest price yet this season. Unfavorable weather in Canada and Argentina was the principal immediate motive for purchasing in Canada, too much moisture was reported, and in Argentine, too little.

Wheat opening prices, which varied from 1.58 to 4.18 cents higher, with December $1.50 to $1.51 1-2 and May $1.55 to $1.57 were followed by rapid fluctuations covering a range of about three cents and averaging about two cents over Saturday's close.

NEW HIGH MARK

Minneapolis, Oct. 6.—Wheat prices soared to new high levels today, smashing all records since 1921. May wheat sold at $1.55, two and a half cents over the previous 1924 high mark. Prices of rye also mounted to new peak figures, while oats and corn shared the strength of other grains. Cash wheat mounted to $1.67 1-2 for choice consignments an increase of 1 1-2 cents over the previous peak. Today's new record for rye included sales of December in Minneapolis at $1.29 1-8 as compared with a previous high mark of $1.26.

MINOT NORMAL IS GROWING

Minot, N. D., Oct. 6.—Present indications are that the attendance at the Minot Normal school this fall will exceed by approximately 20 per cent the total attendance registered at the Minot Normal school at the opening of the term last fall, Dr. George A. McFarland, president of the institution said today. The present registration of 410, Dr. McFarland states, will be increased during the next few days as new students, who have been delayed at their homes, arrive to register at the school. The total attendance during the 1923 fall term was 426.

CORN CONTEST DATE FIXED

Hazleton, N. D., Oct. 6.—The committee appointed by the contestants who are signed up in the F. H. Carpenter Lumber Corn Contest, consisting of John Watkinson, of the Gayton district, Ray Little, of the Tenvik district and John Schanlaber of the Hazleton district decided to hold the show Nov. 1.

This gives any contestant who so desires an opportunity to display his corn at the contest and to take it to the state corn show to be held at Bismarck, November 12, 13, 14 and 15.

ELKS PRAISE RECEPTION IN TOWNS VISITED

School Children, Citizens,
Greet Bismarck Boosters
On Their Tour

Members of the Elks booster party, which traveled north yesterday, arrived here this morning from Garrison, happy over the trip. Some of the cars came in last night, but about half of the party remained in Garrison last night for a dance and other entertainment.

Leaving here yesterday morning, the boosters stopped first at Wilton, where the band gave a concert and citizens greeted them. Sandwiches and coffee were served by the Washburn Lignite Coal Company at its Chapin hotel. The next stop was Washburn for lunch.

In the afternoon, the Elks party visited Fulkerson, Underwood, a city harbor and arrived at Garrison about 4 p. m. School children were out at the last four towns as well as at Washburn. Underwood gave L. K. Thompson, secretary, the key to the city.

The Elks boosted their lodge, the corn show and North Dakota in general. They were well pleased over the hospitality of citizens in the towns visited.

WHEAT GLUTEN LITTLE LOWER, WEIGHT IS UP

Result of Tests of North Dakota Wheat Made Public By Experts

Fargo, N. D., Oct. 4. Tests of 314 samples from 44 counties of the state show an average gluten content of 13.22 per cent and an average test weight of 60.51 pounds per bushel, according to an announcement made today by C. E. Mangels, cereal chemist of the North Dakota Agricultural college.

The gluten content is slightly below that of last year, when the average was 13.35 per cent, but the average test weight is far in excess of that for a number of years. Of the 314 samples tested, more than two-thirds weighed 60 pounds or more per bushel. One sample weighed 65 pounds, 11 weighed 64 pounds, 51 weighed 63 pounds, 68 weighed 62 pounds, 44 weighed 61 pounds and 45 weighed 60 pounds. The lightest sample weighed 50 pounds, 4 weighed 54 pounds, 3 weighed 55 pounds, 9 weighed 56 pounds, and the balance ranged from 57 to 60 pounds.

Bowman county samples had the highest average test weight for any county, 63.5 pounds. Hettinger and Mercer were next with 63 pounds.

This is the first picture of Ramsay MacDonald's big limousine that's been causing all the rumpus over in Great Britain. It is charged that Sir A. Grant is defraying all expenses for it. Here the premier is seen standing beside it just before starting out on a speaking tour.

Barnes, 62.9 pounds, and Dickey and Ransom 62.6 pounds. With 41 samples, Cass county averaged 62.3 pounds. Not more than 11 samples were received from any other county.

In gluten content Adams county led with an average of 14.18 per cent; Pierce was next with 12.42 per cent; Grand Forks, 12.44; Sioux, 12.28; Golden Valley, 12.27; Wells, 12.18 and Benson, 12.15. The highest individual sample tested 15.94 per cent gluten, a sample of Kota wheat from Fingal, Barnes county. Burleigh county samples weighed 60.7 pounds, with a gluten content of 9.75.

GLADSTONE RESIDENT DIES

Dickinson, N. D., Oct. 4. Mrs. Theresa Rudenich, a resident of Gladstone, passed away quietly last Saturday noon at the St. Joseph's Hospital of this city, after a two week's illness. Deceased was well known, and during the years she lived in this county, she had made many friends who regret her death.

OVERLAND

ENDURANCE CAR HERE!

After 98 hours 50 minutes traveling night and day, thru 125 towns in western North Dakota and eastern Montana, during which time—according to affidavits from the men who drove the car—the motor did not stop running—the STURDY, ECONOMICAL OVERLAND ENDURANCE CAR drove into Bismarck today at 11:50 a. m., running like a watch.

Fifteen Men Take Part

During this remarkable ENDURANCE RUN, fifteen men took part, either as driver or disinterested witnesses. Affidavits from these men will verify our statement that the motor ran continually from Tuesday 9 a. m. until today at 11:50 a. m. Not a town in western North Dakota or eastern Montana, is there that doesn't know the OVERLAND ENDURANCE CAR has been there—hundreds of people have placed their hand on the radiator to see if the motor was really cool under such a gruelling test, and then stood back and marveled as they listened to the motor purr away, waiting again to turn out on the long stretch—AN OVERWHELMING DEMONSTRATION OF OVERLAND ENDURANCE AND ECONOMY.

What's Your Guess?

The seal covering the speedometer will be broken tonight at eight o'clock, and the mileage announced and prize awarded. If you haven't guessed, do so before eight o'clock tonight. The ENDURANCE CAR will be on display in our Show Room tonight and tomorrow.

THE STATE'S OLDEST NEWSPAPER
(Established 1873)

THE CAMPAIGN PROCEEDS

The national political campaign is entering into the last month. The whirlwind finish, already under way, is bringing many new developments day by day.

One dollar and a half wheat arrived in Chicago, and one of the arguments of LaFollette forces went to smithereens. Before harvest, the LaFollette orators, fearing prosperity would hurt their chances, charged the big interests were manipulating the wheat market to get farmers' votes. Yet with hundreds of millions of bushels of wheat harvested the price continues to rise.

Charles W. Bryan, the Democratic vice-presidential candidate, emerges from his shell long enough to declare that LaFollette has no chance and that real progressives should vote for Davis and himself. Mr. Bryan is, of course, whistling to keep up courage, in the face of the Literary Digest poll.

Betting odds against Senator LaFollette are raised in New York as the campaign proceeds. Those who expect to profit by betting, hold his chances of election by popular vote are one to six. On the question that he will be able to succeed in his purpose of throwing the election into the national congress, the odds are one to three. Mr. LaFollette's stock has been sinking for a week. It is past its high tide.

President Coolidge takes opportunity to reiterate the Republican party declarations that the United States will decide her own domestic questions. This is his answer to the protocol of the League of Nations Council giving foreign representatives the right to dip into the domestic questions of member nations and declare them outlaws. The League of Nations Council did the Coolidge campaign cause a good turn. It gave an opportunity for him to restate his position and that of the Republican party, and to convince millions that the country's foreign policy is right and proper.

Secretary Hoover, with his usual good sense, shows why government ownership has not developed in this country. In Germany, for example, the nation found it necessary to favor and cooperate with cartels and syndicates in order to participate more largely in foreign commerce. Great Britain, more self-sufficient, did not find it necessary or desirable to adopt such a policy. The United States was favored in the development of individualism by pioneer conditions, and individualism, initiative and personal responsibility have been the key-words of this country's progress.

HELP! HELP! WOMEN!
The campaign to "Get Out the Vote"—to induce all citizens to vote, unlike the 1920 presidential election, where nearly half of the eligible voters stayed away from the polls—this campaign relies for its success quite as much on women as men.

Women neglect to vote just as much as men neglect to vote. National statistics are not compiled. In Illinois, only state where they kept exact track, in 1920, of women's votes, 741 out of every 1000 eligible men balloted, compared with 465 out of 1000 women.

The League of Women Voters is working untiringly to induce more women to go to the polls. By rousing women, they hope to bring out nearly seven million more votes than in 1920.

After generations of effort, women now have the same voice as men, in electing the president. This power, unused, imperils our system of democratic government.

Uncle Sam's government by majority is in danger. Vote without fail! Vote without fail! Vote without fail!

WESTWARD
The east is slowly but surely losing its industrial importance. Atlantic coast states still produce a trifle more than a half of the nation's manufactured goods. But the Mississippi Valley, which in 1850 turned out only 19 per cent of American manufactures, had risen to 41 per cent in 1921. This was shown by the industrial census. The figure has risen. The Pacific coast's share is mounting swiftly. Nothing can stop this shifting. The course of civilization is always westward, following the sunset.

WALKING
People are buying fewer shoes. In six months, sales the country over are 30 million pairs less than in the corresponding months of 1923.

The shoe trade thinks consumers are economizing. The real reason is that people are walking less, riding more in autos. This makes less business for the shoe factories, but more for the doctors and undertakers. The body cannot function properly unless exercised.

ORPHANS
Orphans and other dependent children—125,000 of them—are in orphan asylums and kindred institutions in America.

Mothers, in particular, will pity them. Brighter is the news that the orphan asylum is scheduled to be an extinct institution before many more years. Forty-two states already have special pensions that help widowed mothers support their children at home, 127,000 kiddies getting aid this way. An additional 70,000 have been placed in "foster homes," mainly for children who have lost both parents.

The best way to go through anything without a scratch is to stop and scratch your head before starting.

The girl of today is more interested in bonds than bonbons.

BEING ONE'S SELF

(Atlantic City Union)
Sinclair Lewis is right; a lot of Americans do not get enough fun out of life.

The young intellectuals challenge it is regimented and standardized.

Davenport is put in front of fireplaces, not because the owners want them there, but because other people have them there. Mr. Babbitt installs a cigar lighter in his car, not because he thinks he gets fun out of a harmlessly glittering automobile accessory, but because he thinks it gives "class" to his machine.

Doing things because other people do them, or doing them in order to impress other people is one good way of leading a dull life.

Fun comes by being one's self. The exterior act should reflect the one within.

The davenport is in its proper place when it is where you want it as a being living your own life, and not giving a fig for artificial mass standards.

Life is a game if you play it because you like it. But it is a poor pastime when you find it but another way of doing what other people do. You might rather play marbles or hop-scotch, if marbles or hop-scotch better releases your fun instinct.

The remedy for much of which the young intellectuals complain lies in questioning ourselves more as to why we do things. Have our opinions come to us ready-made from our parents or from our environment, or have we thought things out for ourselves?

Do we put cigar lighters on our cars for the convenience of cigar smokers or to acquire a sham "class"? Why not do more things, think more things, feel more things, that are really our own? That's one way to have fun.

Men want to make things and do things that reflect themselves. They want to create, in the spirit of play, things beautiful or odd or interesting. They get fun out of life to the extent in which the things they make or do reflect what they really are. But as long as the chief business of life lies in coming out better than our brothers in the competitive struggle for the brighter business of making life interesting and creative must wait.

ADVENTURE OF THE TWINS

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

SNOOZLE AND SNUGGLE AND SNORE

Nancy and Nick went around and turned all the town clocks back an hour.

And the Sand Man went to the moon and asked the moon man to hold the moon back an hour. All because they needed a few more minutes till bed time, Tweeek-nose having stolen the magic sand again and made off with it.

The Sand Man was quite pleased when Mister Peeraabout, the Moon Man, said quite obligingly, "Certainly, sir! Anything to oblige you, sir," and put his foot on the brake to keep the moon from going quite so fast.

Then looking at his speedometer, Mister Peeraabout said, "The moon is now going only five thousand miles an hour. We will be an hour late tonight."

"Thank you kindly," said the Sand Man. "If the Twins come, please tell them that I have been to the Dream Maker Man's at the edge of the golden forest on the ice-mountain."

So away he went to the Dream Maker Man's where he lived with his three sons, Snoozle and Snuggle and Snore. The Dream Maker Man and his three sons were just waking after a long day's sleep, for they did most of their work at night.

"Hey hum!" said the Dream Maker Man stretching. "I hope none of the children were allowed to eat candy today, except one piece after dinner. When they get stomach ache they never sleep soundly enough for me to get near with my nice dreams of birds and summer and pretty things. Wake up Snoozle! Up Snuggle! Shame on you, Snore!"

"I hope I'm not intruding," said the Sand Man just then, stepping in at the door. "But there's no time to lose. And he told all about the rascal, Tweeek-nose, stealing his sand."

"Well that's news!" cried the Dream Maker Man. "Boys, come here. We'll have to help the Sand Man and the Twins to get the sleepy sand back. Snoozle, jump on the white night-mare and go to Mars. Snuggle, jump on the black night-mare and go to Venus, and Snore, jump on the black and white night-mare and go to Jupiter. Get the sand back at any cost. Mister Sand Man do you know any magic words?"

"Just say 'Tummy Tummy,'" said the Sand Man. "If you say that the magic sand will jump right to you."

"May we go along?" asked the Twins arriving just then.

"Certainly," said the Dream Maker Man. "But you cannot be there places at once. Get on behind Snoozle on the white night-mare. He's going to Mars first."

So the Twins jumped on behind Snoozle who said "Giddyap" and the white night-mare bounded off over the Milky Way in the direction of Mars.

The Sand Man and the Dream Maker Man continued their search for the mischievous gnome on the moon, while Snuggle and Snore put new shoes on their mares.

There was small hope of Tweeek-nose escaping.

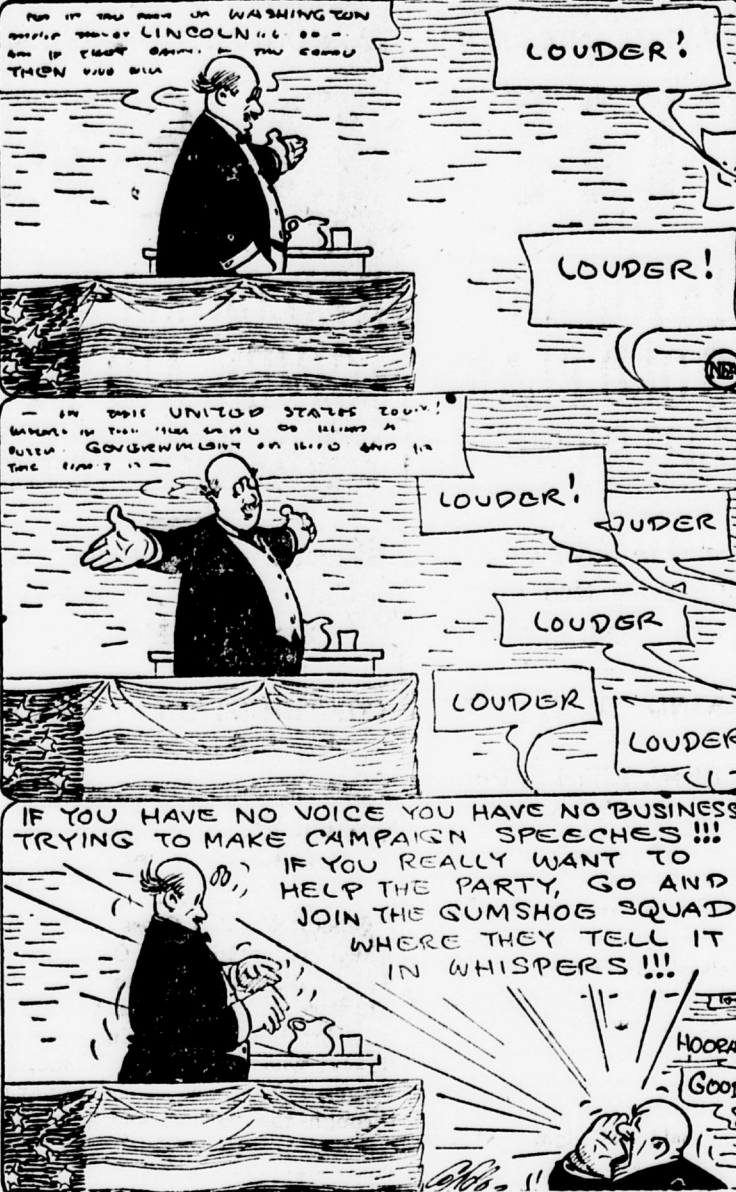

And all the time the town clocks were catching up again. And for all the Moon Man kept his foot on the brake, the moon was catching up, too!

It was very exciting.

THE BISMARCK TRIBUNE

EVERETT TRUE

BY CONDO

With ROOSEVELT IN AFRICA

by W. Robert Foran

BEGIN HERE TODAY
Robert Foran, newspaper correspondent, accompanies the Theodore Roosevelt expedition into Africa in 1909. They arrive at Mombassa, the "gateway to British East Africa," and then make the long railroad journey to their first camp in the game-swarmed Kikuyu Plains.

After a wonderfully successful shooting trip in the Sotik country, the expedition camps for more hunting at a farm called Saigai-Sai. After several other trips they invade the Guaso Nyero elephant country and meet with some more good sport. The Roosevelt expedition is given a royal reception at Njoro and Entebbe. Now they are in the colorful land of the Banyoro people. Foran explains how the kings of these people, when they feel themselves growing old to the point that their mentality is impaired, commit suicide by swallowing a native poison.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
Immediately the death of the king is public knowledge, the many sons of the deceased monarch commence to fight among themselves, brother killing brother, until only one son remains alive. The sole survivor of the battle for the honor of becoming the next royal suicide then ascends the throne and attends to his late sire's funeral.

Several of the lesser queens of the dead king are clubbed to death, as also are the royal horseman and the royal cook at the palace. All their bodies are then placed in an enormous grave, so that their ghosts can minister to the spirit of the king in the next world. It is a stirring adventure belonging to the entourage of the king of Unyoro—the most such as being that of a dusky monarch.

On New Year Day, the Roosevelt expedition broke camp at 5 o'clock in the morning and marched some 20 miles to the next camp. It was a very hot day, and we were all glad to reach the shade of the bandas in the camp at noon.

The following morning we were due to reach Hoima, the capital of

with us. The king of Unyoro came to pay an official call, and was invited to stay to tea. He was dressed for this ceremonial visit in many gaily colored robes, and was attended by a large retinue of white-robed courtiers. However, he was king only in name, and had no real powers in his own country.

After breakfast next morning, Mearns had decided to operate upon me. He had called to his aid the government doctor at Hoima. At the last moment, Colonel Roosevelt insisted on helping, and acted through-out the operation as a dresser and handed the two surgeons the swabs of cotton wool, held the basin of antiseptic, and generally gave needed assistance. It must have been a new role for Colonel Roosevelt, and I was awed to think that the president of the United States was helping to operate upon me in the wilds of Africa. It certainly was an unique situation.

It so happened that there was no anesthetic available in Hoima, and Mearns asked me if I could stand the operation without. I told him to go ahead, and be quick as he could. With three quick incisions, as I lay on my camp-bed, he laid bare the seat of the trouble.

It was not a case of hernia, but merely a bad abscess on the abdominal wall. The instant the abscess had been opened, the pain was relieved. As he operated, I had tried to whistle a tune so as to keep my mind occupied.

"What tune were you whistling, Foran?" asked Roosevelt, as he passed Mearns a bandage. "I don't seem to recognize it."

And then he laughed. We all joined in the laughter, for the joke was on me. I could not for the life of me tell him what the tune was.

"It was not 'tomorrow a-hunting we will go,'" chortled Mearns, as he pinned the final bandage. "You will be a couple of months at least before you can fully recover. You've got to remain in your tent, and rest today."

I made a wry face at this pronouncement, and Colonel Roosevelt looked sympathetically at me.

And then they left me to sleep in my tent, promising to come back and see how I was getting on later in the day. A couple of hours later, I could stand the loneliness no longer, and I made my way painfully across the big banda. As I stood in the entrance, I could see Roosevelt and Kernit busy writing letters.

"Jambo, Bwana Kumbwa." At my words, Colonel Roosevelt glanced up, his face very concerned, and then leaped to his feet to assist me.

CHAPTER XXVI
Across the Albert Nyanza to the

We arrived in Hoima early next morning, having struck camp at daybreak. The road wound through a hilly but fairly open country until it reached the outskirts of the scattered government station.

Our camp was pitched alongside of the residence of the provincial commissioner, Mr. Grant, who had invited Colonel Roosevelt and Kernit to lunch with him. We had a magnificent view from this camp, for it overlooked a deep valley separating Hoima from the big hills lying north of the town.

The king of Unyoro had built a fine "banda" for the use of Colonel Roosevelt, and around it we pitched our tents. Behind the camp, on the brow of the ridge, were situated the bungalows of the officials, the native hospital and the police barracks. Westward were the government offices and the Indian bazaar.

The king of Unyoro and his ministers of state were at the camp to greet Colonel Roosevelt on arrival. The king was a tall and distinguished looking native. When he had come to the throne by a much less brutal path, let it be said—the country was a British protectorate; and no human sacrifices were tolerated. However, according to the chief medicine man of the Banyoro, the king was displeased at such a tame funeral of the deceased monarch who had reigned before this present king. He announced that the god could only be placated if the first person who was seen to come along a certain road was killed over a drum in which human blood was poured, according to tribal custom, at each coronation ceremony of a king of Unyoro.

The local missionaries came to camp and called upon Colonel Roosevelt, and some remained to dinner the kingdom of Unyoro; and here would be completed the first stage of our journey across Uganda to the Albert Nyanza, the Congo, the Nile, and the Sudan.

My dear fellow, you should not have moved," he chided me. But he came across the banda to me, placed his arm round my shoulder and helped me to a comfortable seat. He was most solicitous about my comfort, and did not leave me until he was sure that I was quite all right.

"Now, you just stay there; and don't move until Mearns let you do so," he commanded, with mock anger. But there was a smile in his eyes.

"I was so profoundly lonely," I explained. "Well, you needn't be any more," he answered, as he went back to his letters.

The women are wearing their new fall hats. At least, we think that's what they are.

Cold is what makes the Eskimos fat, which is what makes a girl wear silk stockings in winter.

When a girl throws a good man down he bounces right into another one's lap.

We would hate to be so fat we had no lap upon which to sit the younger set.

Late to bed and late to rise makes one unhealthy and broke and wise. The first season a debutante is quite the belle; the next season she is made into wine, and the third season turns to vinegar.

Many a flame is started by the flicker of an eyelid.

"The Hunchback Of Notre Dame" Great Picture

The production made by Universal of Victor Hugo's immortal story, "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," at the Capitol Theatre, has met with high favor, exceeding any big production within ready memory and promising a permanence most gratifying to all who have the welfare of the screen at heart. In massive-ness and thoroughness this production is a revelation and gives truth to the pronouncement by able critics that it eclipses anything previously offered.

Hugo's story was charged with a dramatic power such as he only could wield. The period of the fifteenth century in France was one wherein drama filled to overflowing the daily lives of its people. The extremes in station of the Parisian people were wide as the poles. And the author's love of the abnormal in character building, together with

THE FIRST LONG TROUSERS

By Albert Apple

Men, it's just 100 years since long trousers began to come into fashion. Beau Brummel, the celebrated English society leader, had introduced them a few years before. His daring example had been copied by the "dandies" of the day. But most men held back, especially the conservative "substantial ones."

They considered long trousers a childish form of masquerade and were afraid they would look ridiculous if they abandoned knee-breeches.

After a century, the pendulum swings and knee-breeches are coming back. They are worn by golfers, engineers and other men of the outdoors, and on camping trips and hikes.

Judging by ease and comfort, a great many men—if truth were known—would like to wear "knee pants" all the time.

Why not? Alas, in men's community association they have acquired a timidity and sense of shame in anything not conforming to the crowd. Long trousers still are "the go"; and it's a brazen male who dares fly in the teeth of convention and wear short ones.

But knee-breeches are coming back, nevertheless. Clothiers predict they will be worn commonly in offices, shops and on the streets within a few years. It certainly will be a revelation, eh? We have a sneaking suspicion that long trousers caught popular fancy because they hid such handicaps to beauty as bow-legs.

Why stop at knee-breeches? Why not dress as most of us have the secret craving? Whenever a lodge or other organization parades, note the pride with which the marchers wear their uniforms, bright colors, sashes and plumes. The savage, the barbaric, still lurks in our blood. We hanker for display quite as much as the jungle natives.

And the chief reason we fail to gratify that hankering is our vanity—our fear that our so-called dignity will suffer. It has come to be considered dignified to wear long trousers. So they're worn. So, too, youth looks forward to the day when it can don its first pair of long ones—and join the ranks of the dignified posers.

The Tangle

LETTER FROM RUTH BURKE TO LESLIE PRESCOTT

Dearest Leslie: You certainly are having your troubles. I think I have relieved you of one of them, however, I have succeeded in separating more or less completely, your mother from the influence of that old maid, Priscilla Bradford.

I expect you have already seen the telegram Mrs. Prescott sent to her son, putting forth her side of the trouble and her moving to the hotel. It didn't affect Jack just the way she thought it would, for the manager of the Plaza showed me a night letter from him saying to make his mother, Mrs. Prescott, just as comfortable as possible, to pay her and her nurse, Miss Anderson, every attention, and to send the bill to his office, where it would be promptly paid by his secretary, Mrs. Atherton.

He stated, however, he had nothing to do with Miss Bradford, and would not be responsible for any debts incurred by her at the hotel. The manager told me that when he sent this telegram up to Mrs. Prescott's room, there was a great how-to-do. Your mother-in-law insisted she was sure Jack had not written the telegram. She said it sounded like you, and you had probably written it and signed Jack's name.

This made Miss Anderson quite indignant, and she told the manager to confirm the wire by a telephone conversation with Mr. Prescott, charging the same on Mr. Prescott's bill for his mother. Jack told him to do with it as he pleased, and insisted that his orders should be carried out. The manager then wrote a polite note to Miss Bradford, saying he had made some mistake in her room, and offering her a cheaper one, enclosing a bill for fifty dollars for her five days in the suite she was occupying.

Miss Anderson told me the fracas that then ensued was as good as a farce comedy. Miss Bradford came rushing into your mother's suite saying she had been told to leave a hotel for the first time in her life, and she called upon all her ancestors, from Governor Bradford down, to bear witness to her respectability and the enormity of the insult. As soon as things quieted down a little, Miss Bradford said: "What will I do now? You know, my dear Mrs. Prescott, I have not the money to pay this bill. I certainly thought I was your guest."

This brought things to a climax, for you must have known by this time, Leslie, that your mother-in-law is rather close. She hangs on to all the money she gets, and you and Jack pay most of her bills. While she thought Jack and you were going to settle for Miss Bradford, she did not worry about her. She liked to have her around to stir up things. But she certainly did not intend to do with Miss Bradford, and dollars a day out of her own very generous allowance.

At the first hint of such a thing, she turned face so quickly that Miss Anderson said she had to hide her smile by looking out of the window. "Dear Priscilla," said your mother-in-law, "there must be some great misunderstanding, for I thought of course you were paying your own way at this hotel. You will remember when you said you wanted to come and visit me, I invited you for two weeks. You have stayed six weeks at the apartment when I moved here. It didn't enter my mind for one minute that you were my guest, after you left the apartment."

"But, my dear Mrs. Prescott," said poor Priscilla, "you had Miss Anderson make all the arrangements for me here."

"Naturally I wanted to save you as much trouble as possible."

"Well, all I can say," said Priscilla indignantly, "is that you have gotten me into more trouble than I expected I would ever have again."

BUILDING OF CHARACTER IS SCHOOL'S TASK

Forward-Looking Educators See Great Opportunity and Duty. Says Miss Palmer

POINTS TO LOER CASE

Chicago Scandal Causes Many to Ask Questions About School System

Mandan, N. D., Oct. 6.—Moral instruction—building of character to fit young men and women to meet the complexities of the increasing business of economic life in the nation is a subject engrossing the attention of leading educators of the times, Miss Bertha R. Palmer of Bismarck, a candidate for the office of State Superintendent of Public Instruction, told the Kiwanis club here today in a non-political address.

"We have fine buildings, special teachers and modern equipment. And yet the scandal in Chicago has resulted, not because of our school system but in spite of it. When things like this can happen and do happen, we may well ask if we are getting the worth of what we pay for in our schools, and if there is not a great deal of waste which might be eliminated if the public will but take an intelligent interest in the problem."

Building Character
The situation has brought before educators and the public the necessity of building character of students and to emphasize the fundamentals in our school system, Miss Palmer said.

"We hear a great deal about fundamental subjects," she said, "it would be wonderful if we are able to teach everything in the public schools but there is a limit here because of the expense. The public should consider, as well the educators, what these fundamental subjects are, upon which public money is to be spent. Indeed, there is no such thing as public money. This is but the money which is paid by different individuals into a common purse in order that all may have the benefit of certain privileges which they could not have by their own resources."

"In our school circles we hear so much about making a living and the needs of industry that the question arises sometime if we have not put too much stress upon the utilitarian value of what we get in school rather than upon the making of great characters. We today teach everything from stenography to psychology with the same emphasis as though all things are equally important."

In drilling the students in the fundamentals of education and in building his character, the teacher plays an all-important part, Miss Palmer said, in urging the maintenance of a high standard of teaching in the public schools. Among the necessities of education, Miss Palmer declared, was a broadening of the system of athletics, or physical instruction, to include a great many boys and girls instead of the few who may be on the school teams. She also urged a firmer preparation in the broad knowledge needed by students taking commercial courses in the schools.

Good Basis Needed
"All business courses require commercial English, commercial spelling, commercial penmanship," she said. "If these subjects are taught with the right concentration in the grades, will it be necessary to emphasize the commercial viewpoint later? As a public we have perhaps been interested in obtaining teachers who could teach a special subject with special emphasis rather than the fact that they are teaching boys and girls to become men and women."

Miss Palmer, in her brief talk, told of her travels in Europe the past summer as a North Dakota delegate to the World Sunday School convention and her studies of the educational systems abroad. She found at Rugby an ideal which might well pervade all school systems, she said. The boys are taught to be "gentlemen," she said, and they are taught that "no gentleman lies, takes that which does not belong to him or plays cards for money." These principles, she found, were drilled into the student by incorporation with the study of such subjects as English, mathematics, and not as special courses.

OCTOBER 27 IS DESIGNATED AS ROOSEVELT DAY

Governor, in Proclamation, Urges Support For National Park Idea

Observance of Monday, October 27, as "Roosevelt Day" in North Dakota was urged today by Governor Nostes in a proclamation. He called upon citizens to devote the day to consideration of the life, labor and ideals of Roosevelt, furthering the campaign for a Roosevelt National Park in the North Dakota Badlands and, the same day being "Navy Day," to consider the value of the Navy in promoting peace, prosperity and the welfare of the country.

"It is our desire that the beauty, grandeur and interest of the Badlands where he dwelt and developed the qualities of body and mind that contribute to success, should be set aside as a national park and opened to the people of America as a playground where the inspiration of Roosevelt's personality and the service he rendered to the world might mold nobler character and finer ideals in the citizenship of the future," the Governor said. "His birthday anniversary cannot be better employed by North Dakotans than to raise the funds required for the campaign to secure the establishment of the Roosevelt National Park in the Badlands of North Dakota."

JAPAN, RUSSIA MAY TAKE HAND IN CIVIL WAR

Japanese Citizens Agitate For Intervention Against Peking Government

RUSS ALREADY DECIDED?

Reported That Soviet Government Will Also Support Manchurian War Lord

Shanghai, China, Oct. 6.—Outside influences—the measure of participation Russia and Japan may take in China's civil war—loomed large today as a potent factor in the factional fight for control of the central government, of China as opposing armies continued battling on widely-separated fronts.

Japanese citizens and military organizations are urging their government to interfere as an ally of General Chang Tso-lin, the Manchurian leader, who is conducting an offensive against the Peking government. The Japanese contend that government is privileged to interfere because of special interests in Manchuria, according to reports received here. Russia is reported to have taken action already in favor of Gen. Chang.

On the Manchurian-Chihli border the armies of General Chang continue to oppose those of the Peking government and were fighting their way south toward Peking, against the stubborn resistance of the Chihli troops.

On the Shanghai front, separated from the Manchurian front by more than 1,000 miles, on Peking controlled territory, General Lu Wuan-hsiang, another opponent of the central government, who has maintained an independent administration in the vicinity of Shanghai as military governor of Chekiang province, continued today to put up a successful resistance against the invading Kiangsu armies in the field.

Shanghai, China, Oct. 6.—(By the A. P.)—The Kiangsu forces, representing the Peking government, undertook a flanking attack south of Sungkiang, a city 28 miles southward from here. The place was defended by 200 Chekiang troops. The invading Kiangsu army then continued its attack against the village of Muzeto, when it was driven back by the Chekiang troops. The Kiangsu soldiers in retreat fell back to positions across the Whangpu river. During the fighting shells fell in the vicinity of Sungkiang, resulting in unnumbered casualties.

JAP AGITATION
Tokio, Oct. 6.—(By the A. P.)—"Patriotic" agitation for Japanese intervention in the Chinese war on the side of Gen. Chang-tso-lin, the Manchurian leader, was brought to a climax today when three members of the Tisho Patriotic Association, all Jiu Jitsu experts, invaded the foreign office and forced their way into the private quarters of Baron Shidehara, foreign minister.

When the trio demanded an interview with the foreign minister he was absent. They then upbraided the foreign minister for what they termed his "spineless" policy toward China.

In their rage, the visitors attacked and severely beat the private secretary of the foreign minister and other secretaries. The police arrested the trio.

Safe Fat Reduction

Why be fat? The answer of most fat people is that constant dieting is hard, and exhaustive—and then, too, it might be harmful to force the weight down. That was the old-fashioned idea. Today in Marmola Prescription Tablets all these difficulties are overcome. Just a pleasant little tablet after each meal, and at bedtime causes fat to vanish. This modern method is easy, entails no dieting or exercising and has the added advantage of cheapness. Get a box of these tablets and start taking them now. Within a short time you will be getting rid of fat steadily and easily without starvation diet or tiresome exercise. You will be comfortable and able to enjoy the food you like and want. Even after taking off many pounds, there will be no flabbiness or wrinkles remaining. All drug stores the world over sell Marmola Prescription Tablets at one dollar for a box, or the Marmola Company, General Motors Building, Detroit, Mich., will gladly send them to you on receipt of the price. LOCAL UTILITY BUYS PLANT AT VALLEY CITY

Bismarck Gas Company Given Authority to Take Over Another Plant

The Bismarck Gas Company has been given authority to purchase the plant of the Valley City Gas Company of Valley City, and to issue $175,000 of bonds against its plant. The consolidation, it is understood, is to be effective at once.

The Otter Tail Power Company, a Fergus Falls, Minnesota, utility, which recently purchased the electric utility at Jamestown, is continuing its program of expansion. It has been granted authority to reduce electric rates in Oakes, to also place effect reduced electric rates at Linton and Sheldon, has petitioned the commission for approval of specifications and route for a transmission line from Oakes to LaMoure, and asked approval of an additional issue of Series "C" bonds totalling $200,000.

The Red River Power Company of Grand Forks has been granted authority by the commission to place in effect reduced schedules for lighting, street lighting and municipal power.

Other decisions by the railroad commission include: Carson Electric Company given leave to file schedule of reduced electric rates. Northern Pacific ordered to construct landing platform at Burleigh to replace one burned.

OPERATE ON WM. G. McADOO

Baltimore, Oct. 6.—William Gibbs McAdoo, former secretary of the treasury, came to John Hopkins hospital yesterday to undergo an operation for the removal of gravel from the bladder. It is not known definitely when the operation will be performed. Dr. Hugh H. Young, clinical professor of urology at the Hopkins medical school, said that Mr. McAdoo's physical condition was good and the operation was not dangerous. Mr. McAdoo probably will be incapacitated for a week, he said.

FIND HESSIAN FLY DAMAGE

Washburn, N. D., Oct. 6.—Robt. L. Shotwell, of Billings, Mont., a government man, with County Agent A. L. Norling, have been the past week hunting for signs of the Hessian fly in the wheat fields of the county. In most of the fields no signs of the fly could be found at work. The samples of wheat from the field where the fly had been found, were of very poor quality, showing what damage the fly can do to a stalk of wheat. The average annual damage to wheat throughout the country has been estimated at $50,000,000.

BUILDING OF CHARACTER IS SCHOOL'S TASK

Forward-Looking Educators See Great Opportunity and Duty, Says Miss Palmer

POINTS TO LOEB CASE

Chicago Scandal Causes Many to Ask Questions About School System

Mandan, N. D., Oct. 6.—Moral instruction—building of character to fit young men and women to meet the complexities of the increasing tenseness of economic life in the nation—is a subject engrossing the attention of leading educators of the times. Miss Bertha R. Palmer of Bismarck, a candidate for the office of State Superintendent of Public Instruction, told the Kiwanis club here today in a non-political address.

"Our national bill for education the past year was two billion one hundred and fifty million dollars," said Miss Palmer. "We have fine buildings, special teachers and modern equipment. And yet the scandal in Chicago has resulted, not because of our school system but in spite of it. When things like this can happen and do happen, we may well ask if we are getting the worth of what we pay for in our schools, and if there is not a great deal of waste which might be eliminated if the public will but take an intelligent interest in the problem."

Building Character

The situation has brought before educators and the public the necessity of building character of students and to emphasize the fundamentals in our school system, Miss Palmer said.

"We hear a great deal about fundamental subjects," she said. "It would be wonderful if we are able to teach everything in the public schools but there is a limit here because of the expense. The public should consider, as well the educators, what these fundamental subjects are, upon which public money is to be spent. Indeed, there is no such thing as public money. This is but the money which is paid by different individuals into a common purse in order that all may have the benefit of certain privileges which they could not have by their own resources."

"In our school circles we hear so much about making a living and the needs of industry that the question arises sometime if we have not put too much stress upon the utilitarian value of what we get in school rather than upon the making of great characters. We today teach everything from stenography to psychology with the same emphasis as though all things are equally important."

In drilling the students in the fundamentals of education and in building their character, the teacher plays an all-important part, Miss Palmer said, in urging the maintenance of a high standard of teaching in the public schools. Among the necessities of education, Miss Palmer declared, was a broadening of the system of instruction, to include a great many boys and girls instead of the few who may be on the school teams. She also urged a firmer preparation in the broad knowledge needed by students taking commercial courses in the schools.

Good Basis Needed

"All business courses require commercial English, commercial spelling, commercial penmanship," she said. "If these subjects are taught with the right concentration, in the grades, will it be necessary to emphasize the commercial viewpoint later? As a public we have perhaps been interested in obtaining teachers who could teach a special subject with special emphasis rather than the fact that they are teaching boys and girls to become men and women."

Miss Palmer, in her brief talk, told of her travels in Europe the past summer as a North Dakota delegate to the World Sunday School convention and her studies of the educational systems abroad. She found at Rugby an ideal which might well pervade all school systems, she said. The boys are taught to be "gentlemen," she said, and they are taught that "no gentleman lies, takes that which does not belong to him or plays cards for money." These principles, she found, were drilled into the student by incorporation with the study of such subjects as English, mathematics, and not as special courses.

OCTOBER 27 IS DESIGNATED AS ROOSEVELT DAY

Governor, in Proclamation, Urges Support For National Park Idea

Observance of Monday, October 27, as "Roosevelt Day" in North Dakota was urged today by Governor Nestos in a proclamation. He called upon citizens to devote the day to consideration of the life, labor and ideals of Roosevelt, furthering the campaign for a Roosevelt National Park in the North Dakota Badlands and, the same day being "Navy Day," to consider the value of the Navy in promoting peace, prosperity and the welfare of the country.

"It is our desire that the beauty, grandeur and interest of the Badlands where he dwelt and developed the qualities of body and mind that contribute to success, should be set aside as a national park and opened to the people of America as a playground where the inspiration of Roosevelt's personality and the service he rendered to the world might mold nobler character and finer ideals in the citizenship of the future," the Governor said. "His birthday anniversary cannot be better employed by North Dakotans than to raise the funds required for the campaign to secure the establishment of the Roosevelt National Park in the Badlands of North Dakota."

JAPAN, RUSSIA MAY TAKE HAND IN CIVIL WAR

Japanese Citizens Agitate For Intervention Against Peking Government

RUSS ALREADY DECIDED?

Reported That Soviet Government Will Also Support Manchurian War Lord

Shanghai, China, Oct. 6.—Outside influences—the measure of participation Russia and Japan may take in China's civil war—loomed large today as a potent factor in the factional fight for control of the central government of China as opposing armies continued battling on widely-separated fronts.

Japanese citizens and military organizations are urging their government to interfere as an ally of General Chang Tso-lin, the Manchurian leader, who is conducting an offensive against the Peking government. The Japanese contend that government is privileged to interfere because of special interests in Manchuria, according to reports received here. Russia is reported to have taken action already in favor of Gen. Chang.

On the Manchurian-Chihli border the armies of General Chang continue to oppose those of the Peking government and were fighting their way south toward Peking, against the stubborn resistance of the Chihli troops.

On the Shanghai front, separated from the Manchurian front by more than 1,000 miles, on Peking controlled territory, General Lu Wuan-Hsiang, another opponent of the central government, who has maintained an independent administration in the vicinity of Shanghai as military governor of Chekiang province, continued today to put up a successful resistance against the invading Kiangsui armies in the field.

Shanghai, China, Oct. 6.—(By the A. P.)—The Kiangsui forces, representing the Peking government, undertook a flanking attack south of Sungkiang, a city 28 miles southward from here. The place was defended by 200 Chekiang troops. The invading Kiangsui army then continued its attack against the village of Mazedo, when it was driven back by the Chekiang troops. The Kiangsui soldiers in retreat fell back to positions across the Whangpo river. During the fighting shells fell in the vicinity of Sungkiang, resulting in unnumbered casualties.

THE STATE'S OLDEST NEWSPAPER
(Established 1873)

THE CAMPAIGN PROCEEDS

The national political campaign is entering into the last month. The whirlwind finish, already under way, is bringing many new developments day by day.
One dollar and a half wheat arrived in Chicago, and one of the arguments of LaFollette forces went to smithereens. Before harvest, the LaFollette orators, fearing prosperity would hurt their chances, charged the big interests were manipulating the wheat market to get farmers' votes. Yet with hundreds of millions of bushels of wheat harvested the price continues to rise.

Charles W. Bryan, the Democratic vice-presidential candidate, emerges from his shell long enough to declare that LaFollette has no chance and that real progressives should vote for Davis and himself. Mr. Bryan is, of course, whistling to keep up courage, in the face of the Literary Digest poll.

Betting odds against Senator LaFollette are raised in New York as the campaign proceeds. Those who expect to profit by betting, hold his chances of election by popular vote are one to six. On the question that he will be able to succeed in his purpose of throwing the election into the national congress, the odds are one to three. Mr. LaFollette's stock has been sinking for a week. It is past its high tide.

President Coolidge takes opportunity to reiterate the Republican party declarations that the United States will decide her own domestic questions. This is his answer to the protocol of the League of Nations Council giving foreign representatives the right to dip into the domestic questions of member nations and declare them outlaws. The League of Nations Council did the Coolidge campaign cause a good turn. It gave an opportunity for him to restate his position and that of the Republican party, and to convince millions that the country's foreign policy is right and proper.

Secretary Hoover, with his usual good sense, shows why government ownership has not developed in this country. In Germany, for example, the nation found it necessary to favor and cooperate with cartels and syndicates in order to participate more largely in foreign commerce. Great Britain, more self-sufficient, did not find it necessary or desirable to adopt such a policy. The United States was favored in the development of individualism by pioneer conditions, and individualism, initiative and personal responsibility have been the key-words of this country's progress.

HELP! HELP! WOMEN!

The campaign to "Get Out the Vote"—to induce all citizens to vote, unlike the 1920 presidential election, where nearly half of the eligible voters stayed away from the polls—this campaign relies for its success quite as much on women as men.

Women neglect to vote just as much as men neglect to vote. National statistics are not compiled. In Illinois, only state where they kept exact track, in 1920, of women's votes, 741 out of every 1000 eligible men balloted, compared with 465 out of 1000 women.

The League of Women Voters is working untiringly to induce more women to go to the polls. By rousing women, they hope to bring out nearly seven million more votes than in 1920.

After generations of effort, women now have the same voice as men, in electing the president. This power, unused, imperils our system of democratic government.

Uncle Sam's government by majority is in danger. Vote without fail! Vote without fail! Vote without fail!

WESTWARD

The east is slowly but surely losing its industrial importance. Atlantic coast states still produce a trifle more than a half of the nation's manufactured goods. But the Mississippi Valley, which in 1850 turned out only 19 per cent of American manufactures, had risen to 41 per cent in 1921. This was shown by the industrial census. The figure has risen. The Pacific coast's share is mounting swiftly.

Nothing can stop this shifting. The course of civilization is always westward, following the sunset.

WALKING

People are buying fewer shoes. In six months, sales the country over are 30 million pairs less than in the corresponding months of 1923.

The shoe trade thinks consumers are economizing. The real reason is that people are walking less, riding more in autos. This makes less business for the shoe factories, but more for the doctors and undertakers. The body cannot function properly unless exercised.

ORPHANS

Orphans and other dependent children—125,000 of them—are in orphan asylums and kindred institutions in America.

Mothers, in particular, will pity them. Brighter is the news that the orphan asylum is scheduled to be an extinct institution before many more years. Forty-two states already have special pensions that help widowed mothers support their children at home. 127,000 kiddies getting aid this way. An additional 70,000 have been placed in "foster homes," mainly for children who have lost both parents.

The best way to go through anything without a scratch is to stop and scratch your head before starting.

The girl of today is more interested in bonds than bonbons.

Editorial Review

Comments reproduced in this column may or may not express the opinion of The Tribune. They are presented here in order that our readers may have both sides of important issues which are being discussed in the press of the day.

BEING ONE'S SELF

(Atlantic City Union)
Sinclair Lewis is right; a lot of Americans do not get enough fun out of life.

The young intellectuals challenge it is regimented and standardized.

Davenporters are put in front of fireplaces, not because the owners want them there, but because of people have them there. Mr. Hobbitt installs a clean lighter in his car, not because he thinks he gets fun out of a harmlessly glittering automobile accessory, but because he thinks it gives "class" to his machine.

Doing things because other people do them, or doing them insincerely to impress other people is one good way of leading a dull life.

Fun comes by being one's self. The exterior act should reflect the one within.

The davenport is in its proper place when it is where you want it as a being living your own life, and not giving a fig for artificial mass standards.

Golf is a good game if you play it because you like it. But it is a poor pastime when you find it but another way of doing what other people do. You might rather play marbles or hop-scotch. If marbles or hop-scotch better releases your fun instinct.

The comedy for much of which the young intellectuals complain lies in questioning ourselves more as to why we do things. Have our opinions come to us ready-made from our parents or from our environment, or have we thought things out for ourselves.

Do we put cigar lighters on our cars for the convenience of cigar smokers or to acquire a sham "class"? Why not do more things, think more things, feel more things, that are really our own?

The one way to have fun. Men want to make things and do things that reflect themselves. They want to create, in the spirit of play, things beautiful or odd or interesting. They get fun out of life to the extent in which the things they make or do reflect what they really are. But as long as the chief business of life lies in coming out better than our brothers in the competitive struggle for the brighter business of making life interesting and creative must wait.

ADVENTURE OF THE TWINS

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

SNOOZZLE AND SNUGGLE AND SNORE

Nancy and Nick went around and turned all the town clocks back an hour.

And the Sand Man went to the moon and asked the moon man to hold the moon back an hour.

All because they needed a few more minutes till bed time. Tweekanose having stolen the magic sand again and made off with it.

The Sand Man was quite pleased when Mister Peersabot, the Moon Man, said quite obligingly, "Certainly, sir! Anything to oblige you, sir," and put his foot on the brake to keep the moon from going quite so fast.

Then looking at his speedometer, Mister Peersabot said, "The moon is now going only five thousand miles an hour. We will be an hour late tonight."

"Thank you kindly," said the Sand Man. "If the Twins come, please tell them that I have been to the Dream Maker Man's at the edge of the golden forest on the ice-mountain."

So away he went to the Dream Maker Man where he lived with his three sons, Snoozle and Snuggle and Snore.

The Dream Maker Man and his three sons were just waking after a long day's sleep, for they did most of their work at night.

"Hey hum!" said the Dream Maker Man stretching. "I hope none of the children were allowed to eat candy today, except one piece after dinner. When they get stomach ache they never sleep soundly enough for me to get near with my nice dreams of birds and summer and pretty things. Wake up Snoozle! Up Snuggle! Shame on you, Snore!"

"I hope I'm not intruding," said the Sand Man just then, stepping in at the door. "But there's no time to lose. And he told all about the magic sand. Tweekanose, stealing his sand."

"Well that's news!" cried the Dream Maker Man. "Boss, come here. We'll have to help the Sand Man and the Twins to get the sleep sand back. Snoozle, jump on the white night mare and go to Mars. Snuggle, jump on the black night mare and go to Venus, and Snore, jump on the black and white night mare and go to Jupiter. Get the sand back at any cost. Mister Sand Man, do you know any magic words?"

"Just say 'Inny Jummy,'" said the Sand Man. "If you say that the magic sand will jump right to you."

"May we go along?" asked the Twins, looking just then.

"Certainly," said the Dream Maker Man. "But you cannot be there alone. At once, get on behind Snoozle on the white night-mare. He's going to Mars first."

So the Twins jumped on behind Snoozle who said "Gidnap" and the white night-mare bounded off over the Milky Way in the direction of Mars.

The Sand Man and the Dream Maker Man continued their search for the mischievous gnome on the moon, while Snuggle and Snore put new shoes on their magic horses.

There was small hope of Tweekanose escaping.

And all the time the town clocks were catching up again. And for all the Moon Man kept his foot on the brake, the moon was catching up, too!

It was very exciting.

EVERETT TRUE BY CONDO

ROOSEVELT IN AFRICA
by W. Robert Foran
© 1924, NEA Service, Inc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
Robert Foran, newspaper correspondent, accompanies the Theodore Roosevelt expedition into Africa in 1909. They arrive at Mombassa, "gateway to British East Africa," and then make the long railroad journey to their first camp in the game-walled Kapiti Plains.

After a wonderfully successful shooting trip in the Sotik country, the expedition camps for more hunting at a farm called Sigat-Sai. After several other trips they invade the Guaso Nyero elephant country and meet with some more good sport. The Roosevelts are given a royal reception at Nyoro and Entebbe. Now they are in the colorful land of the Banyoro people.

Foran explains how the kings of these people, when they feel themselves growing old to the point that their mentality is impaired, commit suicide by swallowing a native poison.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
Immediately the death of the king is public knowledge, the many sons of the deceased monarch commence to fight among themselves, brother killing brother, until only one son remains alive. The sole survivor of the battle for the honor of becoming the next royal suicide then ascends the throne and attends to his late sire's funeral.

Several of the lesser queens of the dead king are clubbed to death, as also are the royal horsemen and the royal cook at the palace. All their bodies are then placed in an enormous grave, so that their ghosts can minister to the spirit of the king in the next world. It is a stirring adventure belonging to the entourage of the king of Nyoro, almost as much so as being that of a dusky monarch.

On New Year Day, the Roosevelt expedition broke camp at 5 o'clock in the morning and marched some 20 miles to the next camp. It was a very hot day, and we were all glad to reach the shade of the bananas in the camp at noon.

The following morning we were due to reach Hoima, the capital of the kingdom of Nyoro, and here would be completed the first stage of our journey across Uganda to the Albert Nyanza, the Congo, the Nile, and the Sudan.

CHAPTER XXVI
Across the Albert Nyanza to the Congo
We arrived in Hoima early next morning, having struck camp at dusk.

The road wound through a hilly but fairly open country until it reached the outskirts of the scattered government station.

Our camp was pitched alongside of the residence of the provincial commissioner, Mr. Grant, who had invited Colonel Roosevelt and Kermit to lunch with him. We had a magnificent view from this camp, for it overlooked a deep valley separating Hoima from the big hills lying north of the town.

The king of Nyoro had built a fine "banda" for the use of Colonel Roosevelt, and around it we pitched our tents. Behind the camp, on the brow of the ridge, were situated the bungalows of the officials, the native hospital and the police barracks. Westward were the government offices and the Indian bazaar.

The king of Nyoro and his ministers of state were at the camp to greet Colonel Roosevelt on arrival. The king was a tall and distinguished-looking native. When he had come to the throne, by a much less brutal path, let it be said, the country was a British protectorate; and no human sacrifices were tolerated. However, according to the chief medicine man of the Banyoro, the god was displeased at such a time funeral of the deceased monarch who had reigned before this present king. He announced that the god could only be placated if the first person who was seen to come along a certain road was killed over a drum in which human blood was poured, according to tribal custom, at each coronation ceremony of a king of Nyoro.

The local missionaries came to camp and called upon Colonel Roosevelt, and some remained to dinner with us. The king of Nyoro came to pay an official call, and was invited to stay to tea. He was dressed for this ceremonial visit in many gaily colored robes, and was attended by a large retinue of white-gowned courtiers. However, he was king only in name, and had no real powers in his own country.

After breakfast next morning, Mearns had decided to operate upon me. He had called to his aid the government doctor at Hoima. At the last moment, Colonel Roosevelt insisted on helping, and acted throughout the operation as a dresser and handed the two surgeons the swabs of cotton wool, held the basin of antiseptic, and generally gave needed assistance. It must have been a new role for Colonel Roosevelt, and I was awed to think that the president of the United States was helping to operate upon me in the wilds of Africa. It certainly was an unique situation.

It so happened that there was no anesthetic available in Hoima, and Mearns asked me if I could stand the operation without. I told him to go ahead, and be as quick as he could. With three quick incisions, as I lay on my camp-bed, he laid bare the seat of the trouble.

It was not a case of hernia, but merely a bad abscess on the abdominal wall. The instant the abscess had been opened, the pain was relieved. As he operated, I had tried to whistle a tune so as to keep my mind occupied.

"What tune were you whistling, Foran?" asked Roosevelt, as he passed Mearns a bandage. "I don't seem to recognize it."

And then he laughed.

We all joined in the laughter, for the joke was on me. I could not for the life of me tell him what the tune was.

"It was not 'tomorrow a-hunting we will go,'" chortled Mearns, as he pinned the final bandage. "You will be a couple of months at least before you can fully recover. You've got to remain in your tent, and rest today."

I made a wry face at this pronouncement, and Colonel Roosevelt looked sympathetically at me.

And then they left me to sleep in my tent, promising to come back and see how I was getting on later in the day. A couple of hours later, I could stand the loneliness no longer, and I made my way painfully across the big banda. As I stood in the entrance, I could see Roosevelt and Kermit busy writing letters.

"Jambo, Bwana Kibuka!" At my words, Colonel Roosevelt glanced up, his face very concerned, and then leaped to his feet to assist me.

"My dear fellow, you should not have moved," he chided me. But he came across the banda to me, placed his arm round my shoulder, and helped me to a comfortable seat. He was most solicitous about my comfort, and did not leave me until he was sure that I was quite all right.

"Now, you just stay there; and don't move until Mearns let you do so," he commanded, with mock anger. But there was a smile in his eyes. "I was so profoundly lonely," I explained.

"Well, you needn't be any more," he answered, as he went back to his letters. (Continued in Our Next Issue)

THE FIRST LONG TROUSERS

By Albert Apple

Men, it's just 100 years since long trousers began to come into fashion. Beau Brummel, the celebrated English society leader, had introduced them a few years before. His daring example had been copied by the "dandies" of the day. But most men held back, especially the conservative "substantial ones."

They considered long trousers a childish form of masquerade and were afraid they would look ridiculous if they abandoned knee-breeches.

After a century, the pendulum swings and knee-breeches are coming back. They are worn by golfers, engineers and other men of the outdoors, and on camping trips and hikes. Judging by ease and comfort, a great many men—if truth were known—would like to wear "knee pants" all the time.

Why not? Alas, in men's community association they have acquired a timidity and sense of shame in anything not conforming to the crowd. Long trousers still are "the go"; and it's a brazen male who dares fly in the teeth of convention and wear short ones.

But knee-breeches are coming back, nevertheless. Clothiers predict they will be worn commonly in offices, shops and on the streets within a few years. It certainly will be a revelation, eh? We have a sneaking suspicion that long trousers caught popular fancy because they hid such handicaps to beauty as bow-legs.

Why stop at knee-breeches? Why not dress as most of us have the secret craving? Whenever a lodge or other organization parades, note the pride with which the marchers wear their uniforms, bright colors, sashes and plumes. The savage, the barbaric, still lurks in our blood. We hanker for display quite as much as the jungle natives.

And the chief reason we fail to gratify that hankering is our vanity—our fear that our so-called dignity will suffer. It has come to be considered dignified to wear long trousers. So they're worn. So, too, youth looks forward to the day when it can don its first pair of long ones—and join the ranks of the dignified posers.

LETTER FROM RUTH BURKE TO LESLIE PRESCOTT

Dearest Leslie: You certainly are having your troubles. I think I have relieved you of one of them, however, I have succeeded in separating, more or less completely, your mother from the influence of that old maid, Priscilla Bradford.

I expect you have already seen the telegram Mrs. Prescott sent to her son, putting forth her side of the trouble and her moving to the hotel. It didn't affect Jack just the way she thought it would, for the manager of the Plaza showed me a night letter from him saying to make his mother, Mrs. Prescott, just as comfortable as possible, to pay her and her nurse, Miss Anderson, every attention, and to send the bill to his office, where it would be promptly paid by his secretary, Mrs. Atherton.

He stated, however, he had nothing to do with Miss Bradford, and would not be responsible for any debts incurred by her at the hotel.

The manager told me that when he sent this telegram up to Mrs. Prescott's room, there was a great how-to-do. Your mother-in-law insisted she was sure Jack had not written the telegram. She said it sounded like you, and you had probably written it and signed Jack's name.

This made Miss Anderson quite indignant, and she told the manager to confirm the wire by a telephone conversation with Mr. Prescott, charging the same on Mr. Prescott's bill for his mother. Jack told him you had nothing to do with it, and insisted that his order should be carried out. The manager then wrote a polite note to Miss Bradford, saying he had made some mistake in her room, and offering her a check or one, enclosing a bill for fifty dollars for her five days in the suite she was occupying.

Miss Anderson told me the fracas that then ensued was as good as a farce comedy. Miss Bradford came to her room, and offering her a check or one, enclosing a bill for fifty dollars for her five days in the suite she was occupying.

"Naturally I wanted to save you as much trouble as possible," said Priscilla indignantly. "Is that you have gotten me into more trouble than I expected I would ever have again?" (Copyright, 1924, NEA Service, Inc.)

rushing into your mother's suite saying she had been told to leave a hotel for the first time in her life, and she called upon all her ancestors, from Governor Bradford down, to bear witness to her respectability and the enormity of the insult.

As soon as things quieted down a little, Miss Bradford said: "What will I do now? You know, my dear Mrs. Prescott, I have not the money to pay this bill. I certainly thought I was your guest."

This brought things to a climax, for you must have known by this time, Leslie, that your mother-in-law is rather close. She hangs on to all the money she gets, and you and Jack pay most of her bills. While she thought Jack and you were going to settle for Miss Bradford, she did not worry about her. She liked to have her around to stir up things. But she certainly did not like to pay her hotel bill of ten dollars a day out of her own very generous allowance.

At the first hint of such a thing, she turned face so quickly that Miss Anderson said she had to hide her smile by looking out of the window. "Dear Priscilla," said your mother-in-law, "there must be some great misunderstanding, for I thought, of course you were paying your own way at this hotel. You will remember when you said you wanted to come and visit me, I invited you for two weeks. You have stayed six weeks at the apartment when I moved here. It didn't enter my mind for one minute that you were my guest, after you left the apartment."

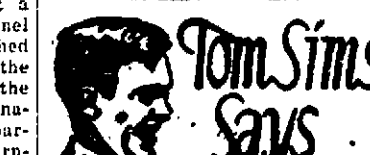

"But, my dear Mrs. Prescott," said poor Priscilla, "you had Miss Anderson make all the arrangements for me here."

"Naturally I wanted to save you as much trouble as possible," said Priscilla indignantly. "Is that you have gotten me into more trouble than I expected I would ever have again?" (Copyright, 1924, NEA Service, Inc.)

A Thought

The thought of the diligent tend only to piteousness; but of every one that is hasty only to want.—Prov. 21:5.

Diligence, above all, is the mother of good luck. Samuel Smiles.

The women are wearing their new fall hats. At least, we think that's what they are.

Cold is what makes the Equinoxes fat, which is what makes a girl wear silk stockings in winter.

When a girl throws a good man down he bounces right into another one's lap.

We would hate to be so fat we had no lap upon which to sit the younger set.

Late to bed and late to rise makes one unhealthy and broke and wise.

The first season a debutante is quite the berries, next season she is made into wine, and the third season turns to vinegar.

Many a flame is started by the flicker of an eyelid.

The mother who said, "What beautiful scenery?" has a daughter who says, "What nice parking places."

The new fall dance steps have many twists and turns.

Neither no longer clips in late at night. He breezes in, confident the others are not there to hear him.

The rising generation stays up to see the sunrise instead of getting up to see it.

"The Hunchback Of Notre Dame" Great Picture

The production made by Universal of Victor Hugo's immortal story, "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," at the Capitol Theatre, has met with high favor, exceeding any big production within ready memory and promising a permanence most gratifying to all who have the welfare of the screen at heart. In masterliness and thoroughness this production is a revelation and gives truth to the pronouncement by able critics that it eclipses anything previously offered.

Hugo's story was charged with a dramatic power such as he only could wield. The period of the fifteenth century in France was one wherein drama filled to overflowing the daily lives of its people. The extremes in station of the Parisian people were wide as the poles. And the author's love of the abnormal in character blending, together with

Sugar Coated Cod Liver Oil Tablets For Thin Kids

Forget the horrible tasting Cod Liver Oil and give the thin, puny, undeveloped child, McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets if you want to give them a good appetite and put pounds of good healthy flesh on their bones.

Doctors know all about them and so does A— and all good pharmacists, for they are in great demand, because they are not laggards, but show results in a few days. They are not expensive either—60 tablets 60 cents, and children take them like candy.

Community Council Holds Fine Meeting

An interesting meeting of the Women's Community Council was held in the Rest Room of the Masonic Temple, Saturday. The matron of the Rest Room reported that 59 babies and 74 adults had registered during the month of September. A donation from Mrs. John Eastwood of Glencoe, was much appreciated by the council. The meeting was addressed by Miss Cashel, social worker, on the Annual Red Cross Roll Call. It was voted to lend assistance to this important work.

Mrs. Leaden of the Agricultural College, talked on the importance of the County Agent's work, and urged the women to help, by voting for this measure on November 4.

Miss Madge Runey talked interestingly on Parent Teacher's Association stressing especially the good that comes from a better cooperation between Parent and Teacher, which may be brought about by supporting this organization.

State Is Well Organized For Roll Call

Miss Isabelle Carruthers, who has been helping with the organization work in Sioux and Dunn counties was in the city Saturday on her way to Fargo where she is connected with the Red Cross in that city. She was enthusiastic over the work already accomplished. There is much rivalry through the state in making and excelling the quotas, said Miss Carruthers, also in getting in the reports. The spirit is good. People who were directors last year are keen to direct the work again this year in order to show what their districts can do. Because of the good crops and resulting good financial condition over the state it is believed that the results will be most satisfactory.

Mr. J. P. Hardy, head of the state Red Cross Roll Call, feels assured that the quota will not only be met but exceeded. He bases his belief on the good reports and on the requests for more supplies. Mr. Hardy feels that it is important that the North Dakota meet and exceed their quota as we are setting the pace for the nation, as our Roll Call is from October 5-18 while that of the other states is not until November 11-28, or Armistice Day to Thanksgiving Day.

Yesterday was Red Cross Sunday and all of the churches observed it with appropriate exercises either in the morning or evening services. It is a very worthy cause and should receive the hearty support of all the people and organizations.

MISS TATELY HONOR GUEST

A bridge party in honor of Miss Clara Tately was given by the Business and Professional Women's club Friday evening with Miss Rose Huber as hostess. Four tables of bridge were in play, Miss Agnes Orr winning the high score honors. Miss Tately was presented with a giant prize. The decorations about the room were large baskets of autumn foliage, in keeping with the Halloween season. During the luncheon, served at the close of play, the Halloween effect also was used in decorations.

At The Movies

THE ETLINGE

"Unhinged Women," which shows at the Etlinge Theatre today and Tuesday, proves two theories. It offers conclusive evidence that there are men of honor still left in this world of storm and strife; secondly it shows that certain members of the female of the species absolutely need the strong will and protecting arm of an honest, dependable man to guard them against their own innate frivolousness which is ever-ready to plunge them into the sea of disaster. The intelligent acting of Bebe Daniels, Richard Dix, Mary Astor and the other members of the admirable cast that includes Walter McGrail, Frank Losee, Harry Messinger and Joe King, and the vivid charm and color of the Oriental costumes and the backgrounds coupled with flawless photography make "Unhinged Women" ideal screen entertainment.

SHERIFF'S SALE
STATE OF NORTH DAKOTA ss.

County of Burleigh.
Mildred Bechtel, Plaintiff,
vs.
J. A. Worden, Defendant.

Notice is hereby given, That by virtue of an execution to me directed and delivered, and now in my hands, issued out of the Clerk's office of the Fourth Judicial District Court, State of North Dakota, and for the County of Burleigh upon a judgment rendered in said Court in favor of Mildred Bechtel, Plaintiff, and against J. A. Worden, Defendant, I have levied upon the following property of said Defendant to-wit:

200 bushels of rye, now in storage at the Farmers' Union Elevator at Regan North Dakota.

And that I shall on Friday the 17th day of October A. D. 1924, at the hour of Two o'clock P. M., of said day, at the front door of the Farmers' Union Elevator, at Regan, North Dakota, in said County and State, proceed to sell the right, title and interest of the above named J. A. Worden in and to the above described property, to satisfy said judgment and costs, amounting to Sixty-seven Dollars and Thirty-five cents, together with all accruing costs of sale, and interest on the same from the 15th day of March 1920, at the rate of seven per cent per annum, at Public Auction, to the highest bidder for cash.

Sheriff, Burleigh County, N. D.

STATEMENT OF THE OWNERSHIP, MANAGEMENT, CIRCULATION, ETC. REQUIRED BY THE ACT OF CONGRESS OF AUGUST 24, 1912.

Of Bismarck Tribune published Daily at Bismarck for October 1st 1924.

STATE OF NORTH DAKOTA ss.

County of Burleigh.

Before me, a Notary Public in and for the State and county aforesaid, personally appeared Geo. D. Mann, who having been duly sworn according to law, deposes and says that he is the Publisher of the Bismarck Tribune and that the following is a true and correct statement of the ownership, management, circulation, etc., of said publication for the month of September, 1924.

1. That the name and address of the publisher, manager, editor, managing editor, and business managers are: Publisher Geo. D. Mann, Bismarck, N. D.

2. That the owners are: (Give names and address of each individual owner, or if a corporation, give its name and the names and addresses of stockholders owning or holding 1 per cent or more of the total amount of stock.)

Geo. D. Mann, President, Bismarck, N. D.; Beatrice Mann, Sec. and Treasurer, Bismarck, N. D.; Mrs. A. J. Ostrander, Vice Pres., Bismarck, N. D.

3. That the known bondholders, mortgages, and other securities held by the company are: None.

4. That the two paragraphs next above, giving the names of the owners, stockholders, and security holders, if any, contain not only the list of stockholders and security holders as they appear upon the books of the company, but also, in cases where the stockholder or security holder appears upon the books of the company as trustee or in any other fiduciary relation, the name of the person or corporation for whom such trustee is acting, is given; and that the said two paragraphs contain statements embracing affiant's full knowledge and belief as to the circumstances and conditions under which such stockholders and security holders who do not appear upon the books of the company as trustees, hold stock and securities in a capacity other than that of a bona fide owner; and that this affiant has no reason to believe that any other person, association, or corporation has any interest in or claim upon any part of the stock, bonds, or other securities than as so stated by him.

5. That the average number of copies of each issue of this publication sold or distributed, through the mails or otherwise, to subscribers, during the six months preceding the date shown above is 3,400.

GEO. D. MANN
Sworn to and subscribed before me this 6th day of October 1924.

Boy Is Found Dying; Exact Cause Mystery

Napoleon, N. D., Oct. 6.—About 11 a. m. Wednesday, Frank, eight-year-old son of Valentin Weller, residing fifteen miles south of Napoleon, was found gasping his last breath, and the team hitched to the load of grain he had been driving enroute from the threshing machine to a granary, standing near by, on the farm.

He was found by a girl who was returning with a team and empty wagon from the granary on her way back to the threshing machine.

The girl spoke to the injured boy and the lad looked up at her but made no reply and apparently was drawing his last breath. The girl rushed away and when she returned with help the boy's life had expired.

Just what happened to the boy is a mystery, as no bones were broken and there was no indication of his having been run over by the load of grain upon which he had been riding, his driving the team, and there was a pool of blood about his head. It is reported that he had been subject to severe attacks of bleeding at the nose, and the leading thought is that he may have become seized by such an attack.

Sugar Coated Cod Liver Oil Tablets For Thin Kids

Forget the horrible tasting Cod Liver Oil and give the thin, puny, undeveloped children McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets if you want to give them a good appetite and put pounds of good healthy flesh on their bones.

Doctors know all about them and exclaim—A— and all good pharmacists, for they are in great demand, because they are not lacerated, but show results in a few days.

They are not expensive either—60 tablets 60 cents, and children take them like candy.

One skinny woman gained 9 pounds in 24 days.

State Is Well Organized For Roll Call

Miss Isabelle Carruthers, who has been helping with the organization work in Sioux and Dunn counties was in the city Saturday on her way to Fargo where she is connected with the Red Cross in that city. She was enthusiastic over the work already accomplished. There is much rivalry existing in the efforts, said Miss Carruthers, also in getting in the reports. The spirit is good. People who were directors last year are keen to direct the work again this year in order to show what their districts can do. Because of the good crops and resulting good financial condition over the state it is believed that the results will be most satisfactory.

Mr. J. P. Hardy, head of the state Red Cross Roll Call, feels assured that the quota will not only be met but exceeded. He bustles his belief on the good reports and on the requests for more supplies. Mr. Hardy feels that it is important that North Dakota meet and exceed their quota as we are setting the pace for the nation, as our Roll Call is from October 5-18 while that of the other states is not until November 11-28, or Armistice Day to Thanksgiving Day.

Yesterday was Red Cross Sunday and all of the churches observed it with appropriate exercises either at the morning or evening service. It is a very worthy cause and should receive the hearty support of all the people and organizations.

MISS TATLEY HONOR GUEST

A bridge party in honor of Miss Clara Tatley was given by the Business and Professional Women's club, Friday evening with Mrs. Rose Hugelen as hostess. Four tables of bridge were in play. Miss Agnes Orin winning the high score honors. Miss Tatley was presented with a great prize. The decorations about the room were large basket of autumn foliage, in keeping with the Halloween season. During the lunch, served at the close of play, the Halloween effect also was used in decorations.

THE ELTINGE

"Unhinged Women," which shows at the Eltinge Theatre today and Tuesday, proves two theories. It offers conclusive evidence that there are men of honor still left in this world of crime and strife; secondly it shows that certain members of the female of the species absolutely need the strong will and protecting arm of an honest, dependable man to guard them against their own innate frivolousness which is ever-ready to plunge them into the sea of disaster.

The intelligent acting of Bebe Daniels, Richard Dix, Mary Astor and the other members of the admirable cast that includes Walter McGrath, Frank Love, Harry Mos-tayer and Joe King, and the vivid charm and color of the Oriental costumes and the backgrounds coupled with flawless photography make "Unhinged Women" ideal screen entertainment.

WASHINGTON TAKES SECOND SERIES GAME

Wins Thrilling Contest Sunday in Washington in the Ninth Inning

MARBERRY IS THE HERO

Washington, Oct. 6.—Batting with the indomitable courage that carried them to their first American league pennant, Washington's Senators Sunday turned the tables on the New York Giants, won the second game of the 1924 World series and put themselves back in the thick of one of the most stirring struggles ever staged for baseball's greatest honors.

In a flashing finish that was equally as spectacular as the climax of Saturday's opening tussle and twice as thrilling to another capacity home crowd of 35,000, Roger Peckinpaugh, veteran Washington shortstop, lifted himself to heroic heights by driving across the winning run in the ninth after the Giants had knocked Zachary, southpaw star, from the box and tied the score with two tallies in their part of the final inning.

Weeks Tie in Ninth
The final score was 4 to 3, the same margin by which the first game was decided, and last night two of the "tightest" clubs that ever met for the championship shifted their battleground to New York where the third game will be played today.

Washington, under the inspired leadership of its brilliant young pilot, "Bucky" Harris, seemed headed irresistibly toward victory Sunday until that ninth inning and its pulse-gripping drama. Behind Zachary, who had outpitched his southpaw rival, Jack Bentley, after a shaky start, the Senators, on the strength of a home run by Goslin in the first inning, with one on, and another circuit blow by Harris in the fifth, entered the final inning with a 3 to 1 lead.

Zachary Is Replaced
But here, with triumph in his grasp, Zachary, whose slow curves had baffled the Giants and held them one run and only four hits in eight innings, weakened and the National league champions, quick to take advantage of their opportunity, launched a desperate attack that, as suddenly as it flared up, was checked by Fred Marberry, relief twirler, who rose heroically to the occasion by striking out Jackson on three pitched balls with Wilson resting on second with a run that would have put the McGrawmen in to the lead.

Thus Marberry, who gained credit for the victory, although he pitched only to one batsman, and Peckinpaugh, whose smashing single drove over Judge with the winning tally in the ninth, when another extrajoining battle seemed imminent, shared in the glory of Washington's world series triumph with Harris and Goslin, whose mighty bats put the Senators into a commanding lead.

MINNESOTA MAN GAINED 30 LBS.

Dwyer Was In Bad Condition Following Attack of Pneumonia.

"My father has given me some pretty good advice but none better than when he told me to take Tanlac," declared John W. Dwyer, 102 First St., S. E. Faribault, Minn., recently.

"Several months ago, pneumonia had me flat on my back five weeks and left my whole system out of whack. My stomach and nerves were all upset, headaches and dizziness bothered me continually, and my bones were so sore I could hardly bear to touch any part of my body.

"I was way under-weight, couldn't sleep right and had no appetite so it looked like I could never build myself up out of that weak, rundown condition. But Tanlac started me to eating and sleeping right away, knocked out all my troubles, and on five bottles I have picked up 30 pounds and feel as good as I ever did in my life. Tanlac is a sure winner."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 40 Million bottles sold.

KRAUSE KNOCKS 'EM OUT OFTEN IN LATE BOUTS

Former Hazen Boy Going Strong in the Boxing Ring For Many Months

Battling Krause, who clashes with Joe Moer in a 10-round bout at the Bismarck Auditorium Thursday night, October 9, has made a fine record the past year, and is rounding into fine shape for the battle.

BAT KRAUSE

One of Krause's best battles was with Joe Simonich, whom he boxed 15 rounds on January 17. Simonich is touted by many as the coming welterweight champion. Krause boxed Gunner Joe Quinn 10 rounds to a draw at Duluth, Minnesota, February 8; defeated Mike Rozgal at Des Moines, Iowa; knocked out Jack Moran in one round at Moose Jaw, Canada, and boxed Dago Joe Gans at Fargo, many giving Krause the better of it. Krause also knocked out Roy Conley, the fighting parson, at Sheridan, Wyoming, in three rounds; stopped Eddie Delaney in five rounds, Red Zagan in three, Buck Garrison in five and Willie Hannan in six. On the last card thus far this year Krause defeated Bates Cunningham.

Krause plans to take on a few more tough boys in the Northwest before going to Vernon, California, where he will box under Jack Doyle.

A new feature of the boxing card here this week was announced today. Jimmy Donahue of Glendive and Orrie Baldwin of Fargo will meet in an 8-round semi-windup.

B.H.S. TRIUMPHS IN GRID GAME HERE 18 TO 0

Team Shows Class in Defeating Jamestown on Muddy Field, Saturday

MAKE 3 TOUCHDOWNS

Bismarck high school's football team came through with an 18 to 0 victory over Jamestown (high here Saturday afternoon, in a game played on a muddy field in a drizzling rain. The local team showed real class for the first time this season, fought hard and executed many plays well. Anderson and Bender, tacklers, were outstanding in their defensive play.

Jamestown won the toss and chose to defend the east goal. Bismarck kicked Jamestown on the latter's 10-yard line, and the ball was returned 10 yards. The play during the first quarter was fairly even. Bismarck started an offensive in the second quarter and took the ball to Jamestown's one-yard line, where it was lost on downs. Jamestown punted and Bismarck again began a drive to the goal, carrying it to the 10-yard line, from which Lofthouse scored on an off-tackle run. The locals failed to add a point by kicking goal. The half ended, Bismarck 3; Jamestown 0.

The "Demons" started the second half with a rush and soon had the Jamestown team in danger again. Jamestown braced and held the locals on the one-yard line for downs. On an attempted punt, Bender, Bismarck left tackle, broke through and blocked and recovered the punt for a touchdown. The try for goal failed.

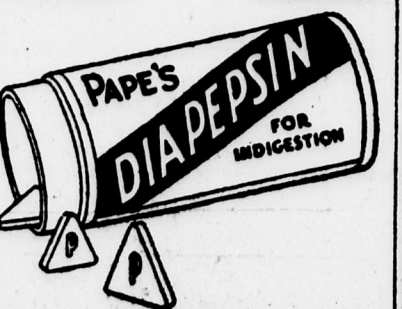

Jamestown again received the kick-off, but lost the ball on downs. Bismarck took the ball to the 12-yard line, and on the fourth down Olson attempted a place kick which missed the bar but was touched by an inside man, Scroggins of Bismarck, who recovered for a touchdown. The quarter ended here, and in the beginning of the fourth quarter Coach Jim Morrison of Bismarck put a new team on the field for Bismarck. The play saw-sawed in mid-field, with neither team being in position to score.

The line-up:
Bismarck: LE R. Nierling
Shepard RE O. Loughheed
Scroggins RT R. Loughheed
Anderson LT W. Baas
Bender, C. LG A. Movius
LeRoy RG F. Hogan
Russell LG F. Hogan
Robidou C G. Frazier

CUBS TAKE SUNDAY GAME

Chicago, Oct. 6.—Grover Alexander, ace of the cub twirling staff, came back at his White Sox rivals yesterday duplicating his efforts of the first game, the Cubs winning, 8 to 3. The series now stands 3 to 2 in favor of the White Sox.

The National leaguers kept pecking away at Charley Robertson, who started well and playing an uphill battle finally drove Robertson off the hill in the seventh inning. Leverette tried to stop the slugging, but had to retire in favor of Cveengros. The latter was not equal to the occasion and the Cubs pounded him hard.

"The Hunchback of Notre Dame" is the longest picture ever shown in Bismarck. First performance at 7 o'clock sharp.

Baltimore In Victory Sunday

Baltimore, Oct. 6.—Bunching hits with bases on balls, Baltimore took the fourth game of the "little world's series" from St. Paul yesterday, 6 to 4. The Saints used three pitchers, while "Lefty" Groves went the route for the Orioles.

The count now stands two games to one in Baltimore's favor, the third contest having resulted in a tie.

"The Hunchback of Notre Dame" is the longest picture ever shown in Bismarck. First performance at 7 o'clock sharp.

COOLIDGE IN HIGH PRAISE OF RED CROSS

President, Speaking at Opening of Society Meeting. Details Good Done

FOR ABOLITION OF WAR

Says Great Good Could Be Accomplished if War Cost Were Abolished

Washington, Oct. 6.—Thanking the American Red Cross for its accomplishments for "practical humanity and inspired charity," President Coolidge, in an address opening the annual meeting of the Society here today, pleaded for a "truly civilized world where the cost of armament, of pensions, of fortifications, and all uncharitableness might be completely relieved and abolished.

Toward such an ideal, Mr. Coolidge declared, the race is making progress. It will achieve this, he asserted, not by some magic formula in some inspired moments, "but because men and women were more and more demanding it."

Describing the Red Cross as the only organization he knew which accomplished any good by "looking for trouble," the President declared it had a definite comprehensive and practical program for helping those who need help "when they need it, and where they need it."

"It knows," he said, "no creed, no party, no politics, no classes or groups. It is proof that materialism is not the dominant motive of the people of the United States. The Red Cross idea will develop as mankind develops. The ideals underlying civilization are the ideals of brotherly love, of tolerance, of kindness, of charity. The beauty of life lies in being whatever destiny awaits us, trusting one another, helping one another."

CONVENTION OPENS
Washington, Oct. 6.—(By the A. P.)—With President Coolidge presiding and delivering the opening address, hundreds of chapter delegates from all parts of the country were here today for the first session of the fourth annual convention of the American Red Cross. The convention will continue through Thursday.

Red Cross problems in the general field as well as its works relating to disabled war veterans formed the subjects of addresses at the morning session by John Barton Payne, president of the society; Director Hines of the Veterans Bureau, Col. E. H. Pond, chairman of the home service section of the Cleveland, Ohio, chapter. Arrangements have been made for radio-casting of the proceedings.
